SENATOR URGES INQUIRY ON PWA POWER FINANCE

Democrat Invited to Join in Demand.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 18.—[Special.]—Senator H. Styles Bridges [R., N. H.] tonight invited Senator Clyde L. Herring [D., Iowa] to join him in sponsoring a resolution calling for a senate investigation of PWA financing of Nebraska power districts and other power project manipulations.

Sen. H. S. Bridges. [Top.]

Sen. C. L. Herring. [Bottom.]

The invitation was extended by Senator Bridges in order to demonstrate that he is not actuated by partisan motives in his demand for a thorough airing of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes' nimble and adroit financial maneuvering to pull PWA power chestnuts out of the fire.

Encloses Four Exhibits.

Senator Bridges inclosed four exhibits in his invitation to his colleague. The first of these is a telegram from A. F. Buechler, editor of the Grand Island, Neb., Independent and one of the original directors of the Platte river public power and irrigation district, who said that congress "owes it to itself as well as an already tax burdened public to investigate what THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has described as the "Nebraska scandal."

Another exhibit is a photostatic copy of a preliminary bond prospectus for the Central Nebraska public power and irrigation district which shows that the district has a contract with Guy C. Myers, promoter of the district and a good friend of the White House, under which he stands to make $2,225,000—a 2½ per cent commission on bond sales for engineering the deal.

The third exhibit is a magazine article, which Bridges pointed out has never been denied, that reveals an alliance between Myers and J. D. Ross, New Deal power expert and Bonneville boss.

Sees Chance for Profit.

"This pair of gold dust twins of the PWA power program," Bridges declared, "apparently have profited handsomely by their association — Ross through Myers' Wall street connections, Myers through Ross' New Deal power connections. Ross recommends Myers as financial agent to Nebraska and Myers recommends Ross as appraiser for the Nebraska districts. Undisclosed as yet is Mr. Ross' Nebraska fee."

The final exhibit consists of photostats of news stories "showing that the PWA projects in Nebraska have been an engineering folly—pointing to the present need for additional private facilities to bail out PWA's failures."

The scheme Senator Bridges is attacking is Nebraska's state-wide electric power monopoly program. Ickes has approved changes in the PWA bond arrangements with federally financed power and irrigation districts which permit them to purchase ten of Nebraska's thirteen privately owned utilities.

The government has spent 63 million dollars on three Nebraska power projects. Because two of these are widely regarded as flops, Senator Bridges charges the federal financing scheme, which involved 100 million dollars, is nothing but an attempt to get out from under.

Letter to Senator Herring.

In his letter to Senator Herring Bridges wrote:

"I call your attention to the attached memorandum with supporting exhibits, which I am sure will convince you that this is a situation that should at least be thoroughly aired now before it assumes proportions of greater importance. Suppression of information concerning these conditions can certainly serve the administration no good.

"Therefore, in order to remove any stigma of partisanship, I offer to share with you joint sponsorship of a resolution calling for a broad investigation of the Nebraska matter."

Yawn Every Two Minutes Baffles Florida Doctors

Tampa, Fla., Dec. 18.—(AP)—G. W. Pope, a young landscape architect who has been yawning about every two minutes during his waking hours since Tuesday, had his physicians puzzled today. Pope was assured that his condition is not serious, but that it is baffling and unusual. Similar cases, he was told, have stopped eventually of their own accord, as mysteriously as they started.

HIT NEW DEAL'S HUGE 'RESERVE' FOR OLD AGE AID

Nonpartisan Council Would Cut Fund.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 18.—[Special.]—The Advisory Council on Social Security in a report made public tonight recommended that the so-called reserve fund set up under the federal old age retirement law be reduced to about 4 billion dollars. Under the present New Deal system the reserve fund ultimately would reach the fantastic sum of 47 billions.

In this recommendation the nonpartisan council of twenty-five members takes a wallop at one of the New Deal's big sources of revenue, raised by pay roll taxes levied ostensibly to build a reserve. The council has been studying social service legislation for fourteen months.

The pay roll taxes now provide more funds than are needed to pay the cost of old age retirement annuities. The surplus, called a reserve by administration spokesmen, is put into the general revenue fund and used for current spending. The "reserve" consists of government bonds representing the amount of surplus social security taxes already spent.

Asks Safeguard for Fund.

As a safeguard for the 4 billion dollar fund recommended, the council would have receipts from taxes on salaries put into a trust fund to be administered by trustees instead of being spent for general governmental purposes.

The "reserve" long has been under attack by critics of the Roosevelt administration who have called it merely a government debt which must be paid by new taxes covering principal and interest.

The council, representing employés, employers, and the public, gave its report to the senate finance committee and the social security board. Need for a contingent fund of perhaps 4 billions is recognized to insure ready payment of benefits.

"Under social insurance programs," the report said, "it is not necessary to maintain a full invested reserve such as is required in private insurance, provided definite provision is made for governmental support of the system."

Vandenberg Praises Report.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] pressed the administration into coöperating in the appointment of the council. Tonight he hailed the report as a complete vindication of the Republican position on old age insurance. He called the report an expert, nonpartisan clarification of a complex program. He was fully satisfied with the recommendations.

The council's report also suggested that the social security law be broadened to cover 14,800,000 additional persons. The act now covers 42 million workers. Those whom the council recommends for immediate coverage include 2 million employés of private nonprofit religious, charitable and educational institutions, 400,000 seamen, and 400,000 employés of state and national banks. The report suggests that 6 million farm hands and 6 million domestic employés should be covered by 1940.

Asks Government Share Costs.

Radical revision of the method of financing old age annuities is recommended by the council. Pension pay roll taxes now are shared by employé and employer. The report urges that the government assume one-third the cost with revenue raised through other sources.

For the calendar years 1937, 1938, and 1939 employés and employers are taxed 1 per cent each on all salaries up to $3,000. The tax is increased one-half of 1 per cent every three

Link Political Leaders with Drug Swindle

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 18.—[Special.]—Federal authorities tonight refused to divulge statements in which two of the Musica brothers are reported to have disclosed the swindling family's hidden years.

This appeared to confirm growing reports that high federal or state officers—or both—had conspired with the four Musicas in their 18 million dollar McKesson & Robbins drug fraud.

It was considered likely that the information supplied by the brothers is being used in an investigation which may lead to criminal prosecution of the officials believed to have been involved.

Political Influence Suspected.

Investigators sought to learn how the far flung deals of F. Donald Coster, drug concern president who killed himself after being unmasked as Philip Musica, an ex-convict, could have escaped the notice of authorities. It was suggested that the gigantic swindle could not have been carried out without the connivance of persons wielding great political influence.

Agents believe that this influence, greased at times with cash from the drug concern's till, accounted for the success of the scheme by which the brothers buried their notorious past fourteen years ago and emerged in control of McKesson & Robbins as respectable business men.

Political protection on a wide front would have been required in the smuggling of munitions to foreign belligerents, of which Gregory F. Noonan, acting United States attorney, says he has conclusive proof, and for the prohibition era bootlegging of alcohol supposedly withdrawn for the manufacture of hair tonic. It was believed that such protection also entered into the disappearance of criminal records, the faked birth and wedding certificates, and in other devices by which the family buried its past.

Politicians Face Quiz.

Investigators looked forward to the appearance of two prominent Connecticut politicians, who handled lobbying, publicity, and legal jobs for McKesson & Robbins, before the federal grand jury here this week. They are Archibald McNeil, a former Democratic national committeeman who is

TOY AIRPLANE, WITH TINY GASOLINE MOTOR, FALLS ON SHIP AT SEA

New York, Dec. 18.—[Special.]—The Holland-America line received a wireless message today from Capt. Johannes J. Bijl, master of the liner Nieuw Amsterdam, reporting that a toy airplane, equipped with a tiny gasoline engine, had crashed into the foremast of the ship Saturday afternoon while she was several miles off Sandy Hook. The liner sailed Saturday for Rio de Janeiro.

The message said that the toy airplane, named the Dawn Patrol, apparently still was proceeding under its own power, at least four miles at sea when it landed on the Neiuw Amsterdam. Capt. Bijl asked the New York office of the company to try to find the owner of the plane, which was only silghtly damaged.

NAZIS FIND HENS ARE NEGLECTING PATRIOTIC DUTIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 18.—Germany's hens have failed to do their duty by the fatherland. They do not lay sufficient eggs to make the import of this product unnecessary, Nazi agriculturists announced today. They said that on the average a German hen lays only 90 eggs a year whereas, according to their opinion, the average should be 140 eggs a year.

Hence, the Nazis have ruled that the production of eggs must be raised without increasing the import of poultry fodder. The National Guild of Agriculture has decided to breed a superior type of hen.

AVALANCHE HITS BELGIAN CITY; IT IS ALL MOLASSES

BRUGES, Belgium, Dec. 18.—A molasses avalanche hit this city today. A cold wave caused the metal of a huge tank to contract, allowing more than 4,000 tons of molasses to break loose. Though moving slowly, the mass tipped over a second tank containing 2,000 tons of molasses. The 6,000 tons of molasses overturned a large tank of creosote mixture. Then the avalanche broke a wall and spread through a coke furnace, threatening the gas supply of Bruges.

Blonde Slayer Puts Trial Hope in Daughter, 15

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Joseph, Mich., Dec. 18.—[Special.]—Fern Patricia Dull is hoping for help from her daughter, Gloria, 15 years old, in her efforts to escape conviction for the murder of William Holbrook.

Gloria Dull.

George B. Gould of defense counsel said today that the child, who is expected to testify tomorrow, will be an important witness for Mrs. Dull.

Another witness the defense plans to call is Mrs. Helen Caldwell, who was Mrs. Dull's confidante for years.

Sits with Defense Lawyers.

The attorneys say Mrs. Caldwell can tell much of the life Mrs. Dull spent with Holbrook, whose secretary and office wife Mrs. Dull was. Mrs. Caldwell has sat at the defense counsel table throughout the trial.

Gould and Defense Attorney H. T. Dewhirst may decide to place another psychiatrist on the stand to bolster Mrs. Dull's contention that she shot Holbrook in self-defense, that she couldn't tell right from wrong at the moment, and that she didn't know what she was doing.

Spectacular developments are expected when Prosecuting Attorney E. A. Westin and his associate, Robert P. Small, cross-examine the two psychiatrists who already have testified.

Say Mind Might Have Failed.

The psychiatrists are Dr. Walter M. Bartlett of Benton Harbor and Dr. Harley Sears, assistant medical superintendent of the Kalamazoo State hospital. Both have testified on direct examination that the silver blonde office wife might have been unable to tell right from wrong as a result of beatings by Holbrook, and that her mind might have been a blank when she fired.

Indications are that final arguments will be made Tuesday and that the case will go to the jury late Tuesday or Wednesday. The case is being heard by a jury of two housewives and ten married men.

Public Enemy to Be Treated for Mental Ill

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 18.—[Special.]—Alphonse Capone, public enemy No. 1 of the prohibition era, in all likelihood will not return to Chicago next month to serve a year in the Cook county jail. This sentence was imposed upon him for contempt of court at the time he was given ten years in federal prison for income tax evasion.

Al Capone.

It was learned tonight that the department of justice is making arrangements with members of Capone's family to have them waive the one-time gang lord's return to Chicago and agree to him serving the year in Alcatraz prison in San Francisco bay, where he now is confined, or in the federal detention jail at Los Angeles.

The department is seeking to keep Capone in California so that treatment for paresis, from which he has been suffering for almost a year, may be continued. It was reported that if Capone remains in the prison hospital for a year, he probably will be rid of the mental disorder on final release.

Special Treatment Feared.

The department also is concerned lest Capone be accorded special privileges in the Cook county or nearby Illinois county jails. Officials recalled that Terry Druggan, beer baron, was treated like a hotel guest when he served a contempt sentence in the old Cook county jail. Other notoricus prisoners of the same era looked out through lace curtains on the cell windows of the jail at Sycamore.

The suggestion that Capone be kept on the coast was presented to Capone's family through Abraham Teitelbaum, Capone's attorney. Teitelbaum was in Washington recently seeking to learn what plans the department of justice was making for Capone's release. Teitelbaum was asked to report back on the family's decision this week.

It is expected that the family will acquiesce, not only out of regard for Capone's health, but because the department can force them to do so. The department could make him serve his full sentence of ten years, plus a year in jail.

"Good Time" Club Over Head.

Capone never officially has been credited with his time off for good behavior although he has been a model prisoner. He has accumulated good time totaling almost four years, which makes him eligible for release on Jan. 19—but only at the discretion of federal authorities.

However, the department is ex-

POISONER PENS OWN STORY DAY OF EXECUTION

Blames Murders on Broken Love.

In an amazing death house confession, made public today Anna Marie Hahn Cincinnati's murderess, told how she poisoned four love sick old men after taking their money. Mrs. Hahn, 32 years old, died in the Ohio state prison electric chair at Columbus the night of Dec 7. She left with her lawyer the confession, penned by her own hand under the eyes of the death watch a few hours before she died. In court she had stoutly denied killing Jacob B. Wagner, for whose death she paid with her life. Errors in the text of the confession are not corrected. The words are as Mrs. Hahn wrote them. The first of two instalments of the confession follows:

BY MRS. ANNA MARIE HAHN.
[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

I don't know how I could have done the thing I did in my life, only God knows what came over me when I gave Albert Palmer [72 years old, a railroad watchman] that first one, that poison that caused his death.

Up in heaven there is a God who will judge me, he will know and he will tell me how it all came about. He will tell me what caused me to do the same things to Mr. Jacob B. Wagner [78 years old, a retired gardener], Mr. [George] Gsellman [67 years old, a crossing gateman], and the last one, Mr. [George] Obendorfer [67 years old, a cobbler].

Tried to Aid Victims.

I never knew and I don't know now. When those poor men got sick I tried to do everything for them. I sat at their bedside nursing them. When I stood by Mr. Wagner as he was laid out in the funeral home I don't know how it was that I didn't scream out at the top of my voice.

[Mrs. Hahn describes the bleakness of her prison cell, dwells upon her great love for her 12 year old son, Oscar, who was a daily death house visitor, and then describes her early and uneventful life in Germany. She suggests that several illnesses and serious skating and skiing accidents might have "changed my mind" and "caused me to do these terrible things."]

I was 17 years old [in 1923] when I met Dr. Max Matscheki [since deceased] in Munich [Germany]. These were some of the happiest days of my life. He was such a grand fellow and we were attracted to each other right away. We fell in love. It was the kind of love that every young girl thinks about, this love at first sight. I went out with him many times, to dances and other places where young people enjoy themselves.

Doctor Whispers Love to Her.

He could dance so well and he held me so tight and whispered love to me when we were dancing. I was happy then. He said we would get married some day and could be so happy. I believed him just like any other girl believes in a fellow she has learned to love. He was always talking about getting married soon and I loved him so much so I gave in to him.

Then one day I had to tell him that I was going to have a baby and that we would have to get married right away. When I told him that, right away there was a big change in him. I couldn't understand it at first. He told me that he couldn't marry me, that he already had a wife in Vienna.

Something happened to me right then. It was just like a mountain falling on me, not killing me, just smothering me and crushing me. I remembered how I cried then, I don't remember what I said. It was just such a terrible moment. No one except a person who has had this thing happen to them will ever know what a thing like that does to a young girl. I had been so full of love for Max and he had said he loved me so much and said that we would be married and live happy.

Confesses He Is Married.

Now that couldn't be. The man to whom I had given myself in such a full love belonged to another. Then Max suggested that I should not keep the unborn baby. That was a terrible day in my life. No matter whatever will happen to me now there will never be another time like that.

I thank God that I did not listen to him. I thank God I let my baby live. No matter what mean things people, who did know all about my case and how everything happened to me, say about Anna Marie Hahn they can never say I killed my baby.

[At this point Mrs. Hahn describes how, because of shame over her unwed state, she emigrated to Cincinnati when she was 2.. in 1928 and met and married Philip Hahn, who was willing to give her son a name. She returned to Germany and brought Oscar back with her to Cincinnati. A business she and Hahn started failed and the family went to live with Ernest Kohler, a teamster, 63 years old, who had been a friend of her father. Kohler died in 1933, leaving a $12,000 house to Mrs. Hahn. She says—and the authorities agree—that cancer alone caused his death. Again Mrs. Hahn failed in business and then took up gambling and playing the races in a desperate effort, she declared, to support her unemployed husband and her son. A mutual interest in horse racing brought her into association with Albert Palmer, the first of her four victims, who died March 27, 1936.]

Tells Palmer Her Troubles.

Because he [Palmer] seemed to be a friend to me I started telling him my troubles. I told him I was going out there [to Elmwood, O., where she played the races] to get money to protect my boy. He offered me assistance. He told me I would have to come to his house to get the money. I was crazy with fear and needed the money so I went. He made me loans and I paid much of it back. Then when I didn't pay back fast enough to suit him then it was that he wanted me to be his girl.

All my early troubles of my girlhood came back to me. It turned my head. He threatened me that if I didn't do what he asked he would see his attorney to get the rest of the money that I loaned from him. I told him to please wait awhile and give me a chance.

But he wouldn't let me alone. He came to my house and threatened me again. He had brought some oysters and wanted me to go home with him. God knows I did not want to kill him, and I don't know what put such a thought in my head. I can't remember now how it was. I only know that suddenly I remembered that down in the cellar was some rat poison. I had seen it one day when I was down in the cellar. I don't know how it got there.

[The state charged Mrs. Hahn bought the poison, "enough to kill all Cincinnati," that was in her possession when she was arrested. Palmer's relatives claimed that she made $4,000 by his murder.]

Slips Poison Into Oysters.

Something in my mind kept saying to me, give him a little bit of this and he won't trouble you any more. It was then that he again insisted that I be his girl friend or he would have to have his money at once. I told him that I couldn't pay him right away. Again he threatened me and I don't know what made me do it, but I slipped some of the poison into the oysters. I told him to go on home and he left, at the same time threatening what he was going to do to me.

I did not see him again for some time, two weeks, I think it was. All the time I was worrying. Nobody will know my troubles. I prayed that everything would be all right. As time went on and I did not hear from him, I began hoping that the thing I did was only a bad dream and he was not going to sue me and make trouble for me.

Palmer Taken to Hospital.

Then it was that his sister called me up and told me they had taken her brother, Mr. Palmer, to a hospital. I visited him just as soon as I could and he was very nice to me. He told me he was sorry for the way he had treated me. He told me he would not make any trouble for me. I prayed that he would get well. Nobody knows the things that went through my mind. I told the nurses and doctors to do everything they could to make him well, but on Holy Thursday Mr. Palmer died. Only I knew why, but I couldn't understand what made me do such a thing.

Mr. Palmer was laid out on Easter Sunday. For weeks after he was buried I felt I would lose my mind because way down in my heart I really did not want this awful thing to happen to him.

[The second instalment of Mrs. Hahn's confession will appear tomorrow.]

3 BANDITS RAID CLUB, FORCE 90 MEMBERS TO REMOVE TROUSERS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 18.—(AP)—Three youthful gunmen forced 90 men to remove their trousers and robbed them of between $10,000 and $30,000 in a holdup at exclusive Beacon club early today. One of the victims fainted.

Shouldering their way into the place with a member, two of the bandits directed the disrobing and searched the trousers while the third greeted incoming guests and herded them into a line against the wall.

The handkerchief masked gunmen fled in a waiting automobile when a telephone started ringing.

DEDICATE LAST LOCK AND DAM IN DEEP WATERWAY

Peoria, Ill., Dec. 18.—(AP)—The $3,128,000 lock and dam at White House Crossing, the last in a series forming the Illinois deep waterway from Chicago to St. Louis, was dedicated today. The project was begun in December, 1935.

The U. S. S. Comanche, carrying army engineers, public officials and business and civic leaders, steamed down the river to the lock, where Mayor David McCluggage of Peoria cut a ribbon stretched between standards. The ship then proceeded through the lock.

Capt. S. N. Karrick, district engineer from Chicago was the principal speaker. He was accompanied by a group of engineers from the Chicago area.

The negotiations are being carried on with the family because, while Capone is not violently insane, his occasional lapses would make questionable any agreement entered into with him.

The gang leader was stricken early last February. The syphilitic affliction [paresis is one of the manifestations of the disease] was traced to his early days in crime when he operated a string of south side vice resorts.

Mind Lucid at Times.

For a time the department of justice pondered his removal from "The Rock," as the prison in San Francisco's bay is known, but decided against it when examining physicians said Capone was not insane. His disorder was reported to be intermittent and it was said that Capone has long periods when he is as lucid as any of his fellow prisoners.

Federal physicians treating Capone have been using the most advanced methods known for combating paresis. These include artificial methods of inducing fever. The Alcatraz hospital is equipped for treating paresis much more efficaciously than most other prisons and jails.

Capone was sentenced by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson in Chicago. He began serving his ten year prison sentence in Atlanta on May 22, 1932, and was transferred to Alcatraz some months later.

The year's jail sentence for contempt of court brought his full sentence to 11 years. In addition, Judge Wilkerson imposed fines on five counts, totaling $50,000, besides court costs of more than $7,000.

Could Take Pauper's Oath.

In 1937 Capone's attorneys sought unsuccessfully to have the contempt sentence and the fines remitted. The only avenue now open for Capone to escape paying the fines and costs would be to take a pauper's oath and serve thirty days additional time. Federal law provides that any person without funds can cancel a fine of any amount by serving thirty days in addition to the term imposed.

But Capone still is reputed to be wealthy, and it is not considered probable that he would risk taking a pauper's oath, and thereby embroil himself again with the government over a false affidavit.

An indication of his prosperous financial status is seen in his gift of $1,200 to the prison band for the purchase of instruments. He also is reported to have offered the prison warden $4,000 with which to build and equip a tennis court.

Three Attempts Upon Life.

While Capone has been a model prisoner, he has caused prison authorities considerable trouble by arousing the enmity of fellow prisoners.

Three attempts have been made upon Capone's life. On June 23, 1936, he was stabbed in the back by a Texas bank robber whom he had refused a loan. The wound was slight. Earlier another convict put lye in Capone's coffee and a third attempted to strangle him in his cell.

Capone has no love for "The Rock." Before he was stricken he told prison officials that he would rather serve the full ten years sentence elsewhere than serve another year at Alcatraz.

RUMANIAN ARMY CHIEF KILLS SELF WITH GUN AFTER BURNING WOMAN

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Dec. 18.—Col. Grigori Vulturescu, chief of staf of the second army corps, shot and killed himself this morning after an all-night party.

Col. Vulturescu attended the party accompanied by several other high officers and society notables. After having dined, danced and drunk at a café, the party adjourned to a small Hungarian restaurant just opposite Vulturescu's home.

There either while lighting a cigaret or while playing some prank, Vulturescu accidentally set fire to the dress of one of the women in the party. In an instant she was enveloped in flames. She was taken to a hospital with severe burns. After the accident Vulturescu crossed the road and shot himself with his army pistol.

DWIGHT H. GREEN: A PICTURE FROM WIFE'S VIEWPOINT

Effaces Self in Devotion to G. O. P. Candidate.

BY MARCIA WINN.

To get Mabel Kingston Green to talk about herself is a feat. She is the wife of Dwight H. Green, who Saturday announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for mayor. Any question asked her will be twisted back until it revolves around her husband.

To many people Mr. Green will always be the man who sent Capone to Alcatraz, the man of whom Capone said, scowling: "I wish I had that guy defending me." To others he is the man who gave the late Samuel Insull a harrowing four months in court. To still others he is simple, quiet "Pete" Green, a studious, graying man of 41 who likes people and law.

He's "Pete" to His Wife.

His wife calls him "Pete" or "Poppy." If he didn't work so hard she'd think him perfect. But, then, she admits, his sense of humor is not "terribly keen" either.

Mrs. Green is quiet and poised, with large, laughing blue eyes and chestnut hair worn in a long bob. She looks about 32. She married Dwight Green in June, 1926. They have two children, Nancy, who is 11 and looks like her mother, and Gloria, 7, who has the impish brown eyes of her father.

Mrs. Green was surprised about a month ago when her husband told her he might run for mayor. She was, in fact, a little appalled, as the idea of public life was upsetting. But when she saw he was serious she settled right down. She now is certain he is the right man, the only man, for the office.

Thinks He Works Too Hard.

"He's the hardest working person I've ever seen," she commented yesterday sitting in the library of their apartment. "Too much so, I think, for his own good.

"And then, too, he's interested in people. I think he would do everything in his power to better conditions in Chicago. He is fearless.

"I think that the fact that he prosecuted those gangsters was proof enough. Threatened? O, never. I know it is customary for many United States attorneys to have bodyguards, but he never had one.

"I was never worried, although people talked so much about it, of course, that I would think about it. It truly never disturbed me, though."

Unworried by Capone Case.

Neither she nor Mr. Green worry in the least about the possibility of Capone's release from Alcatraz, she says. After all, she says, Prosecutor Green was honest with Capone and treated him fairly and honestly.

Of all the prosecutor's cases that was the one she followed most closely. He merely assisted in the prosecution, but the idea of prosecuting Chicago gangsters for income tax evasion was his, she says, and it took endless hours of delving into income tax records.

Mrs. Green plans to take no active part in her husband's campaign. "I'd rather not," she says. After all, there are the children, both in the Harris school, and she doesn't want to disturb their quiet life.

Outside Activities Few.

Aside from her family activities, her life is quiet. Her great outside interest is the Arden Shore association. She is on the board of its Chicago committee.

Before her marriage she worked at the Farmers and Mechanics' bank in Washington, D. C. It was there she met Mr. Green in 1925, when he was a busy young attorney in the bureau of internal revenue. She was married to him several months later.

The only flaw for her in the coming campaign is the long hours away from home for her husband. She feels as her youngest daughter did a few years ago when Mr. Green was made a chief of the Nuaiui tribe in Indiana. "O daddy," cried Gloria, "now that you're an Indian chief, are you still going to live here?"

FEAR STEEL AID AND DAUGHTER, 6, DROWNED IN BAY

Miami Beach, Fla., Dec. 18.—[Special.]—Charles S. Rye of Pittsburgh, Pa., and his daughter, Dorothea, 6 years old, are believed to have drowned in Biscayne Bay. They have been absent from their hotel suite since Thursday. The motorboat in which they started for a cruise was found today with a hole stove in the bottom.

Rye was 38 years old and employed in the market research division of the United States Steel company. He came here ten days ago to recuperate from a nervous breakdown. Rye formerly lived in Elmhurst, Ill.

Marine police who found the damaged boat theorized that the child was thrown into the bay when the boat struck some flotsam and that her father leaped after her in a rescue attempt while the boat continued on until the fuel was exhausted.

YOUNG DEMOCRAT SESSION WHOOPS IT UP FOR KELLY

500 Break Loose in Yells as Mayor Appears.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

With noisy enthusiasm, the Young Democrats of Cook County yesterday turned their annual convention into a "Kelly for Mayor" demonstration.

Sounds associated with a winning touchdown broke forth from 500 members of the organization when Mayor Kelly entered the Casino room of the Morrison hotel. Cheers, shrieks, whistling, clapping of hands, drowned the efforts of a drum and bugle corps as the mayor walked to the stage.

A resolution begging the mayor to stand for reëlection was adopted with a flourish and more yells. It termed the five and two-thirds years of his administration "the finest municipal government in Chicago's history."

Most in Early Twenties.

Nearly all those present were in their early twenties. The mayor took cognizance of this and related a bit of his early political history.

"When I was 19 I had charge of an election district of five precincts," he said. "I was tall for my age. I used to be embarrassed when I was asked to vote. I had to side-step, saying I had already voted. I'll admit that I was tempted to vote anyway.

"I'm telling you this only to show you what young people can do. You are the nucleus of an organization that could catch fire all over this county, and become a much larger one."

Continues to Delay Reply.

The mayor said he was moved by the demonstration, but reiterated that he will not announce his decision on the campaign until Thursday night, when he will make a radio address.

"There must always be a possibility for the younger generation to go forward," he said. "I am the son of an immigrant. I had to start work at the age of 12, with only such education as I could get myself, yet I became the mayor of a great city. Such opportunities must be preserved for you.

"If you believe in helping your fellow man, and just keep plugging, you'll come out on top."

Campbell Attends Meeting.

With the mayor was William J. Campbell, newly appointed United States district attorney. He is only 33 years old.

"I am an alumnus of this organization," Campbell said. "The country needs to recognize the place that young people must occupy in government. Keep working toward that end. In spite of many measures, the problem of employing youth still is serious."

Resolutions expressing regret at the illness of Gov. Horner and commending him and Mayor Kelly and President Roosevelt were adopted.

Officers elected were Henry Appel [9th ward], president; Bud Arvey [24th], son of J. M. Arvey, acting chairman of the Democratic county central committee, vice president; Jack Gordon [32d], treasurer, and Joseph Mirabella [Oak Park], secretary.

Democratic leaders said the selection or indorsement of candidates for city clerk and city treasurer will not be taken up until after Mayor Kelly's Thursday evening speech.

The Republican county committee, however, with Dwight H. Green selected as its candidate for mayor, will start discussions today on the city clerkship and treasureship with a session of its subcommittee on candidates. Before long, the committee also will take up the preparation of a slate of aldermanic candidates that may cover all fifty wards.

"Nearly every ward committeeman I have talked with," said County Chairman Edward F. Moore, "says his organization is working along this line and I'm confident we'll have a first class lot of candidates. I favor having a strong candidate in every ward in the city."

Petitions for the nomination of Martin Powroznik as a Democratic candidate for the mayoralty are said to be in circulation. He was a candidate in 1935 and received approximately 40,000 votes.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 18.—(AP)—Philadelphia men exercised their right of franchise today to pick the Quaker City's No. 1 glamour girl of 1938.

Blue eyed Nini is exactly 5 feet tall, weighs 110, and wears her blonde hair in a longish bob.

The consensus of those of the forty-five eligible bachelors who voted for her:

"She skates like a whizz, dances like an elf, sings like a bird, and skims along when walking."

Nini, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Ligget of Haverford, made her debut last September.

LAKE SKATER BREAKS THROUGH THIN LAYER OF ICE AND DROWNS

Jerry Huevaere, 26 years old, 4911 Belmont avenue, drowned yesterday afternoon when he broke through the thin ice on Diamond lake near Mundelein. Two others who crashed through at the same time were rescued. They are Miss Anna Joseph, 20 years old, and Oscar Joseph, 16 years old, of 3034 Addison street, sister-in-law and brother-in-law of Huevaere.

The three, accompanied by Huevaere's wife and another of her sisters, Clara Joseph, arrived at a summer cottage on the lake shortly after noon. All went skating a few minutes later. Nearly a hundred skaters were on the ice, which was solid near the shore, but unsafe farther out.

Huevaere and Anna Joseph were together when the ice broke. The girl clung to a cake of ice until help reached her, but Huevaere sank at once. Oscar Joseph was about a hundred yards away and was hurrying to help the others when he went through. He was able to scramble back to the firm ice.

Farmer and Son, 11, Drown When Pell Lake Ice Breaks

Lake Geneva, Wis., Dec. 18.—[Special.]—Ralph Williams, 36 years old, a Bloomfield farmer, and his son, Mahlon, 11 years old, were drowned in Pell lake, six miles east of here, this afternoon while skating. After they had broken through the ice, neighbors on the shore heard the father cry for help. Before they could reach him he had lost his hold on the broken ice and had gone under. The bodies were recovered.

LINK POLITICAL LEADERS WITH DRUG SWINDLE

Two Musica Brothers Tell of Hidden Lives.

a friend of President Roosevelt, Postmaster General Farley, and Attorney General Cummings, and Harry E. MacKenzie, a former Republican leader.

A statement by Irving R. Kaufman, assistant United States attorney, that others as prominent as Coster were involved in the scandal also was considered significant.

The two brothers who were understood to have made statements concerning the drug swindle and the family's varied deals are George Musica, alias George Dietrich, who was assistant treasurer of McKesson & Robbins, and Arthur Musica, alias George Vernard, who manipulated the dummy concerns and fictitious drug transactions through which the swindlers netted $150,000 a year in unearned commissions.

One to Be Arraigned Today.

George Musica will be arraigned before Federal Judge William Bondy tomorrow morning on an indictment charging conspiracy to falsify financial statements to the Securities and Exchange commission in connection with the vanishing of 18 million dollars in the drug firm's assets. Arthur Musica pleaded not guilty Friday a few hours after his brother, Philip, committed suicide.

The third brother, Robert Musica, alias Robert Dietrich, maintained his innocence. Robert, who handled shipping matters for the firm, was arrested on an information charging SEC violations and is not under indictment. He and Arthur are in the federal detention home here. George will be brought from the New Haven, Conn., jail to New York City tomorrow for arraignment.

The family's trafic in arms and ammunition continued to be the main line of inquiry for the United States attorney's office.

John Kantor, a stock promoter formerly well known in Chicago politics who told police that McKesson & Robbins had offered to sell him 250,000 Lee-Enfield rifles, was held in the Tombs, city prison. He will repeat his story to the grand jury and then will be taken to Connecticut, where he is wanted on a stock swindling charge.

Doubt Cast on Story.

That such a large number of rifles had figured in the affairs of the drug concern was doubted today by Saunders Norvell, former chairman of the board of McKesson & Robbins and former president of the Remington Arms company. The Remington plant is located at Bridgeport, Conn., where the drug company also has a manufacturing plant.

Norvell said that the only sources of such a quantity of guns, other than army stores, would be the two largest arms manufacturers, Remington and Winchester. These, he said, would not be likely to jeopardize their best account—the United States government—by violating the neutrality act in smuggling munitions.

While there was speculation to the effect that some of the 18 million dollars in missing assets of McKesson & Robbins might have been paid by the Musicas in blackmail to persons who knew their real identities, none of the investigating agencies tonight could say that any evidence showing this to be a fact had been uncovered.

Governmental agencies were preparing for a conference tomorrow afternoon at which an effort will be made to coördinate the numerous inquiries into the ramifications of the downfall of the drug firm. Brian McMahon, assistant United States attorney general in charge of criminal investigation, will preside. McMahon discussed his plans over the telephone from Washington this afternoon.

Seeks to Speed Inquiry.

"There is only one set of books and obviously only one set of witnesses," said McMahon. "Unless we get together there will be several agencies trying to get at the same page of a record or trying to talk to the same witness at the same time."

McMahon said the conference would be attended by representatives from the following agencies: The department of justice and its bureau of identification or "G-men," the SEC, the postoffice department, which will seek to ascertain whether mail frauds were involved, and the income tax and narcotics divisions of the treasury.

At the same time, Ambrose V. McCall, assistant state attorney general in charge of the securities division here, announced that resumption of his public hearings on the case tomorrow will depend on the availability of witnesses. All directors and officers of McKesson & Robbins will be questioned at the series of hearings, which started last week.

Study Blue Sky Violations.

McCall is attempting to learn whether there was any violation of the so-called Martin act, or article 23-A of the general business law of New York state, which corresponds to the blue sky law in Illinois. Officials found guilty of fraud in the issuance, purchase, or sale of securities will be prosecuted, McCall declared.

The body of Coster, who committed suicide in his sumptious villa when federal officers approached to rearrest him, was transported last night to the Fairchild funeral home in Brooklyn. It was taken through a back service entrance into the building at 7 o'clock this morning in an attempt to avoid newspaper reporters and photographers.

A few minutes later, Mrs. Carol Coster, the swindler's widow, arrived in another automobile. She remained in seclusion in a private room of the funeral home.

Drug Firm's Report

This chart of McKesson & Robbins company profit and loss appeared in the company's 1937 report to stockholders with encouraging statement by President "F. Donald Coster," since proved to be Philip Musica. It said in part: "The above chart illustrates visually that the company's profits have almost reached those of 1929."

CAIRO RESIDENTS OWN STOCK IN M'KESSON FIRM

Cairo, Ill., Dec. 18.—[Special.]—Considerable McKesson & Robbins Drug company stock is owned by residents of Cairo. They acquired the stock in 1929 when McKesson & Robbins bought the Schuh Drug company and paid for it with stock.

Julius P. Schuh, son of the man who founded the Schuh Drug company seventy-five years ago, is manager of the Schuh division and a vice president of McKesson & Robbins. He informed Cairo stockholders that trustees have been appointed to operate McKesson & Robbins and that business of the Schuh division is normal, despite the exposure of F. Donald Coster, the swindling head of McKesson & Robbins, as Philip Musica, a long time criminal. Musica killed himself Friday.

Schuh said the corporation would be reorganized and predicted that its position would be stronger when the reorganization is completed.

BAR PROPRIETOR SEIZED AS FINGER MAN FOR BANDITS

Accused of Victimizing Friends and Strangers.

Ben Stein, owner of the Briar bar at 3144 Broadway, and a partner in Waldorf Supplies, Inc., in the Palmolive building, was seized by detectives last night as an alleged finger man for bandits. Stein, police said, pointed out both friends and strangers as victims.

A friend, Irwin J. Russakov, vice president of the Russakov Steel Sheet Specialties company, was held up and robbed of $2,274 in jewelry and other loot on Nov. 26. Stein's own business partner, Horace G. Lowenthal, of the Belmont hotel, just missed being robbed on Saturday.

Stein was exposed through the chance arrest Saturday night of William Walz, 19 years old; Peter Neilsen, 20, and William Patterson, 19, all of 424 St. James place. They were seized by Detectives John Gallagher, Dave Coghlan, and John Cremer. A gun and mask were found in their car.

License Plate Bent.

The detectives investigated when they noticed that the rear license plate of the car Patterson was driving was bent in such a manner that it could not be read easily.

Walz and Neilsen confessed the Russakov robbery. With Patterson they named Stein. They spent considerable time in Stein's saloon, they said. Stein would indicate likely robbery victims, and furnished them their only gun, they said. They asserted they were in Stein's tavern Saturday night when Stein pointed out Lowenthal.

"That man is my partner in the Waldorf company," the trio quoted Stein as saying. "I just paid him $1,200 in a business deal. He's going home in my car. Follow him, and get that $1,200. We'll split it four ways."

Lose Him at Trafic Light.

Walz, Neilsen, and Patterson followed Lowenthal, but lost him because of a stop light interruption. They were arrested soon afterward on suspicion.

Stein, who is 24 years old, lives at 426 Briar place. He admitted, police said, that he had pointed out his partner for robbery, but denied telling the young bandits that Lowenthal was carrying $1,200.

Lowenthal told police he was surprised at the plot to rob him. He said he was carrying about $1,100, of which $500 came from Stein.

Russakov was robbed in his home at 6420 Newgard avenue. Jewelry and a fur coat were taken. Walz and Neilsen—Patterson was not involved—alleged that Stein gave them $200 for their share, saying that Russakov would collect insurance. Stein told police he pawned some of the loot for $70 late at night at the home of George Davis, 41, of 5418 Ellis avenue, a pawn clerk. Davis also was arrested. In Stein's apartment police found a $1,400 diamond taken from Russakov. It had been set in a ring given Stein to his wife.

450 M'KESSON PLANT EMPLOYES WILL LOSE CHRISTMAS BONUSES

Bridgeport, Conn., Dec. 18.—[Special.]—There will be no Christmas bonus this year for the 450 employés of the McKesson & Robbins drug manufacturing plant in Bridgeport. The announcement was made today. The plant closed Friday for its annual inventory. Controler John McGloon told workers they would be taken back when operations are resumed Jan. 2. In past years the Christmas bonus has been a week's pay.

$75,000 APARTMENT BUILDING BLAZE ROUTS 6 FAMILIES

Fire swept through the basement and first floor of the three story shop and apartment building at 2362-74 Neva avenue last night, routed half a dozen families, and caused damage estimated at $75,000. A battalion chief and a fireman were injured slightly.

The fire spread rapidly, and sent dense clouds of oily smoke through the upper floors. Prompt work by the first firemen on the scene kept the flames from reaching the second and third floors. A 4-11 alarm was turned in later.

Most of the damage was done in a jewelry store, a tailor shop, a tavern and a restaurant. A drug store and a bowling alley were damaged by smoke.

Firemen came upon a handbook at 2370 Neva avenue that apparently had been overlooked by State's Attorney Courtney's ax raiders. They smashed the place with axes.

The fire extinguished electric lights in the neighborhood for about ten minutes. Lights went out in the Mont Clare theater, 7133 Grand avenue. Louis Spirrison, the manager, told the audience the interruption was due to trouble across the street, thus allaying excitement.

G. O. P. ASSEMBLY LEADERS LABOR TO PREVENT SPLIT

Fear Loss of Speaker by Downstaters' Fight.

BY PARKE BROWN.

An attempt to prevent a Republican split that might play into the hands of Democrats scheming to elect one of their number as speaker of the new Illinois house of representatives was begun yesterday by seven downstate Republican members.

They sent letters to the rest of the fifty-seven downstate Republicans asking them not to attend a caucus in Springfield tomorrow, which was called by seven speakership candidates for the confessed purpose of preventing the election of Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg of Chicago.

Fear Loss of Support.

While the letters did not say so specifically, the signers are said to feel that if the Republicans become embroiled in a sectional issue, the Democrats will revert to their original plan of seducing enough Republicans to break the G. O. P. majority of seventy-nine and thereby raise their own minority of seventy-four to th seventy-seven required for the election of a speaker.

Another move similarly seeking party unity was seen in a hurried call for a meeting of the Republican state central committee at Springfield today. The call was issued by Chairman A. K. Stiles of Sycamore for the announced purpose of considering final reports on the November campaign. But it is understood that a more important purpose was that of preventing a downstate vs. Chicago fight.

Appreciate Showing in City.

The letters sent to downstate Republican members of the legislature by the committee of seven urging them not to attend the caucus tomorrow read as follows:

"Many downstaters elected on Nov. 8 as Republican members of the house of representatives have agreed that this letter should be sent out in their behalf by the undersigned committee. None of us is a candidate for speaker.

"It is generally recognized that the future success of the Republican party in Illinois would be seriously retarded by any move to array downstate against Cook county.

"In organizing the house by the election of a speaker, we must do nothing to create a rift in our party. The holding of a so-called downstate meeting or caucus can do no good and would be positively harmful in its results so far as the welfare of the Republican party is concerned. All Republican representatives should attend only the official caucus to be held on the evening of Jan. 3 at the call of the Republican state chairman.

"Looking solely to the future of the Republican party in this state, we urge you to stay out of any 'downstate' caucus, conference, or meeting."

Kidnap Victim

WILMA KENNEDY.

Austin, Tex., Dec. 18.—(AP)—Frank Salazar, Mexican laborer who killed a west Texas farm couple and forced their daughter to accompany him on his flight, was caught in a shack near here today.

The girl he had kidnaped, Wilma Kennedy, 16 years old, was with him, unharmed. She had not learned that Salazar had slain her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kennedy of Niles, Tex., Thursday night.

Sherif Lee O. Allen said Salazar admitted he had killed the couple, but denied he had attacked their two other daughters, Fay, 4 years old, and Imogene, 13, with an ax. The children were found critically wounded near the bodies of their parents yesterday.

Mussolini Opens Coal Mining Town on Island of Sardinia

CARBONIA, Sardinia, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini today dedicated this new model coal mining community in southern Sardinia where, he recalled, only twelve months ago there were neither men, nor roads, nor water only solitude and malaria.

Map shows Carbonia, new Italian coal town.

Heac claimed the development of Italy's long abandoned coal deposits in Sardinia as another step in the nation's self sufficiency drive and as "the proud and indomitable will of Fascism."

Carbonia — which means "Coal Town"—is the newest Italian town and today has 12,000 inhabitants, but in a short time, Il Duce said, its population will be doubled.

Crowd Praises Mussolini.

"Under the stimulus of autarchy [totalitarian government]," he declared before a cheering crowd of miners and Black Shirts attending the inauguration, "this old, faithful, and for too long forgotten soil of Sardinia reveals its treasures.

"Shall we call it a miracle?"

"Yes! Yes!" responded the crowd and Mussolini replied:

"Let us say, rather, the proud and indomitable will of Fascism."

"Yours!" shouted back the crowd.

Mussolini declared that the coal which Italy would produce at Carbonia would be "not inferior to foreign coals."

Though Sardinia recently was the scene of demonstrations in the Italian agitation over the neighboring French island of Corsica and other French territory no such note was injected into Italy's celebration.

Recalls Economic Siege.

Il Duce remarked that the dedication of the town occurred on the third anniversary of "the day of faith." He said that on that day Italian women gave up their gold wedding rings to the nation during "the shameful siege of the league of nations" through economic penalties during the Italian-Ethiopian war.

"When a people is capable of such an example," he said, "it may look squarely into the eyes of anybody and everybody."

After his speech, Il Duce spent half an hour in the mines, inspecting machinery and chatting with miners.

Mussolini, accompanied by Fascist leaders, came to Sardinia aboard the cruiser Bolzano.

Rich in Minerals.

Sardinia, a Mediterranean island 115 miles from the Italian mainland, has been celebrated since ancient times for the wealth of its minerals.

Their exploitation has proceeded only spasmodically, however. Among the minerals is lignite, a variety of coal intermediate between peat and bituminous coal.

Italy in 1937 imported coal valued at $90,892,800 in addition to her own production of 953,695 short tons of black coal and 1,014,710 short tons of lignite.

SLOVAKIA ELECTS FIRST DIET UNDER AUTONOMY RULE

BRATISLAVA, Czecho-Slovakia, Dec. 18.—(AP)—The first election under Czecho-Slovakia's new government of centralized power was held today when Slovaks chose their initial provincial diet [parliament]. Only one list of candidates, those of the Slovak people's party founded by the late autonomy leader, Father Andrea Hlinka, was permitted.

Dr. Joseph Tiso, who on Dec. 1 was named premier and minister of the interior for Slovak territories, headed the ticket. There were some Germans and Hungarians among the candidates, but no Czechs or Jews, of whom several hundred thousand live in Slovakia.

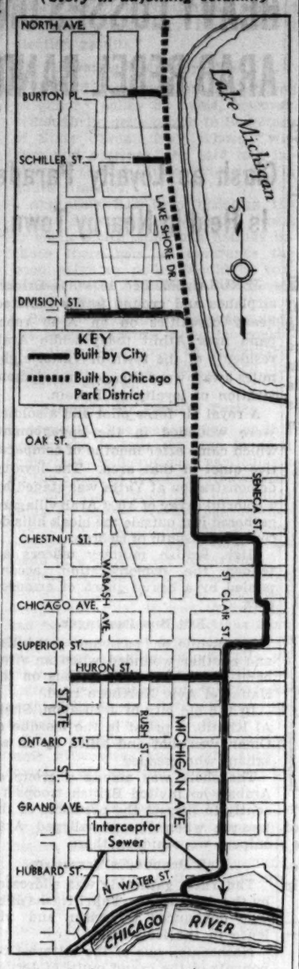
It was estimated 90 per cent of the votes were cast for the people's party candidates.

NOKOMIS SCHOOL BURNS.

Nokomis, Ill., Dec. 18.—(AP)—The south side grade school building here was destroyed by fire today. It was a two story brick structure built 35 years ago at a cost of $75,000. Authorities expressed belief that the fire was caused by an overheated boiler.

Nears Completion

(Story in adjoining column.)



The city's sewer project to provide adequate service for the Streeterville area will be completed soon.

PURSE SNATCHER GETS $50.

Miss Helen Skinner, 719 East 80th street, was robbed of $50 last night by a purse snatcher at 80th street and Champlain avenue.

STREETERVILLE SEWER PROJECT NEARLY FINISHED

Supplies Drainage for Thickly Peopled District.

One of the city's most important sewer jobs in recent years will be completed early next year, Mayor Kelly said yesterday. It is the Michigan avenue-St. Clair street sewer supplying drainage for the thickly populated district on the near north side between Dearborn street and the lake.

Much of this territory, now built up with office buildings, apartments, and hotels, was claimed by Capt. George Wellington Streeter after his boat Reutan went aground on the shore in 1886. The captain and his family continued to live on the ship. He contended that the land made by lake action around the craft was rightfully his. But he lost in court and died in 1921.

Park Project Finished.

The park district recently finished work on a major sewer project north of Streeterville along Lake Shore drive. Then the city started building the Michigan-St. Clair sewer to connect the park sewer with a sanitary district interceptor which runs along the north bank of the Chicago river.

Included in the Michigan-St. Clair project are three branches in Burton place, Schiller street, and Division street which connect existing city sewers with the sewer built by the park district. A fourth branch under Huron street connects a sewer under State street with the new Michigan St. Clair sewer leading to the sanitary district interceptor.

The new sewers being constructed by the city in this project are more than two miles long, the mayor said. The pipes range in diameter from six to eight feet.

Vital Need, Says Kelly.

"From a health standpoint, this new sewer was one of the city's most vital needs," Mayor Kelly explained. "And the entire project is being financed without additional tax burdens on property owners. In other years such a project would have cost citizens $650,000 in special assessments."

The old sewers were so small, records show, that with heavy rains sewage backed up and bubbled out of catch basins. There were instances in which the sewage spilled over into Lake Shore drive, increasing the motoring hazards, according to the city sewer department. Work being done by relief labor is under the supervision of the department.

FEAR HIGH DEATH TOLL IN 23 HOUR QUAKE IN TURKEY

ANKARA, Turkey, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Many persons were feared today to have perished in a series of violent earth shocks over a period of 23 hours in the Kirshehir area of central Anatolia.

Circle Indicates Area Hit by Quake.

The tremors were known to have wrecked more than 100 houses and to have left at least 900 homeless.

Many appealed to be removed permanently from the district, recalling with terror the disastrous earthquakes last April.

HIT NEW DEAL'S HUGE 'RESERVE' FOR OLD AGE AID

4 Billions Sufficient, Says Nonpartisan Council.

years until it reaches 3 per cent in 1949, and remains at that figure.

Benefit payments under the present law will range from $10 to $85 monthly, depending upon how much salary the employé has earned between 1937 and the time he becomes 65 years of age. To get the minimum payment the employé must have earned $2,000 before reaching 65, and to get the maximum he must have earned $129,000.

Would Cut Tax Increases.

Instead of increasing the tax on employés and employers one-half of one per cent in 1940, the council recommends an increase of one-quarter of one per cent and preparation of a completely new financial plan for presentation to congress not later than Jan. 1, 1942. This would be a year before the next scheduled increase in the tax levy.

As the law now stands, benefit payments to wage earners are not to be started until 1942. The council urges that payments be started on Jan. 1, 1940, and that payments to beneficiaries with wives more than 65 years old be increased by 50 per cent. The council also recommends extra benefits to widows, orphans and dependent children.

In this recommendation the council envisioned keeping the family unit intact after death of the husband and father. The report suggested payment of three-fourths of the husband's annuity to his widow in cases where there are dependent children, and smaller sums to childless widows.

Urge More Uniform Benefits.

Study of a possible reduction in the benefits potentially available is urged to the end that payments to all beneficiaries would be more nearly even and not in the sharply ascending scale provided by the present law. The council believes reduction of the benefits for individuals in the higher brackets would offset increases to those in the lower brackets.

A minority report presented to the senate committee and the security board warned against increasing the cost of social security through liberalization of payments. Walter D. Fuller, president of the Curtis Publishing company and industrial member of the commission, said an increase in the cost of social security would delay reëmployment of 10 to 13 million idle persons.

Fuller believes the one-half of one per cent increase in taxes should be delayed from Jan. 1, 1940, because it would saddle employers and employés with an additional expense of 300 million dollars a year when they are trying to emerge from a depression. He said the present security program is taking from seven to ten cents of each pay roll dollar, and that if present tendencies are continued, the cost ultimately may reach 10 to 20 cents of each dollar.

CEDAR RAPIDS ATTORNEY DIES.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Dec. 18.—[Special.]—J. C. Leonard, 83 years old, an attorney and pioneer resident, died here last night. He retired from law practice in 1934. His widow, six daughters, and four sons survive. Funeral services will be held Tuesday.

Changes Urged

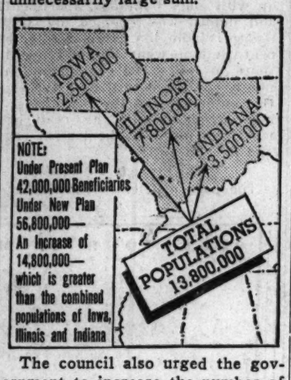
The nonpartisan council on social security laws yesterday urged the government to decrease its old age retirement reserve from 47 billion dollars to 4 billion. This money is now raised by taxes on pay rolls and was held by the council as an unnecessarily large sum.



The council also urged the government to increase the number of beneficiaries under the law by 14,800,000. None of those in the proposed increase is now included in benefits under the law.

SOCIAL SECURITY TOPS DOCKETS IN 44 LEGISLATURES

Changes in social security and welfare laws head proposed legislation to come before the legislatures of fourty-four states in 1939, a survey by the Council of State Governments showed yesterday.

The states will consider measures to finance new welfare proposals and direct relief. Mainly on that account legislatures will work on bills to initiate or increase sales and other taxes.

Bills requiring pre-marital physical examinations are to be considered in seven states, including Indiana. Illinois and nine other states have such laws. Among miscellaneous legislative proposals are those to repeal port of entry laws in Oklahoma and New Mexico.

REBEL ARTILLERY BREAKS CALM ON SPANISH FRONT

HENDAYE, France, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Spanish rebel artillery, again breaking the calm on Spain's war fronts, hammered government fortifications today in the Tremp sector of the northern Catalonian front.

The cannonading was followed by air raids on government lines. Relays of dozens of rebel bombers dropped tons of explosives on government positions.

BRITISH INFLICT HEAVY LOSSES ON ARAB REBEL BAND

Clash as Loyalty Parade Is Held in Nearby Town.

JERUSALEM, Dec. 18.—(AP)—British airplanes and ground forces inflicted heavy casualties on an Arab rebel band near Athlit today while Arab residents of the town of Yatta, eight miles away, were engaged in a demonstration of loyalty to Britain.

A royal air force pilot and a soldier were wounded in the engagement, which came after months of comparative quiet in that area. The loyalty demonstration at Yatta was staged by a colorful array of 3,000 Arab villagers gathered just outside the bleak hillside community south of Hebron.

High British military officers attended the demonstration, accompanied by a heavy guard of armored cars.

Kill Bus Passenger.

Meanwhile, one passenger was killed and another wounded when an Arab band ambushed a Jewish bus on the Haifa-Tel Aviv Northern road.

In the old city of Jerusalem, Sheik Al Khatib, a priest in the mosque of Omar, was shot and killed by an assailant who escaped.

The sheik was among a group of Arabs who invited British troops recently to inspect the precincts of the mosque when it was alleged Arab snipers were hidden there.

Arab Denounces Terrorism.

The Yatta gathering was addressed by the Arab leader, Fakri Nashashibi, who denounced terrorism and violence in the Holy land.

Nashashibi, one of the bitterest opponents of the grand mufti of Jerusalem, declared peace could be achieved only by nonviolent methods.

The grand mufti, Haj Amin Effendi Al Husseini, now in exile in Syria, has been charged with fomenting Palestine's Arab unrest.

2 ROBBERS GET $1,500 IN HOLDUP OF PARKING LOT

Two masked bandits obtained $1,500 early today in a daring robbery in the office of the Chicago Service Parking company at 221 West Randolph street.

The money, representing week-end parking receipts from several downtown lots, had been collected by John Fiorino, 29 years old, 1130 South Hermitage avenue, the manager. He had just put it into the safe when the gunmen appeared.

They forced Fiorino and two attendants, Frank Carr, 28, of 233 East Huron street, and Arnold Douglas, 22, of 5212 Lieb avenue, to put up their hands, and kicked Carr when he was slow complying. Then they grabbed the money from the safe, ran out to a car driven by a third man, and escaped.

Drug Store Customers and Cash Till Robbed

Two robbers walked into a drug store at 4800 Madison street yesterday and took $28 from Maurice Slattery, 4902 Van Buren street, and $15 from Morris Baitler, 4848 Quincy street, patrons, then robbed the cash drawer of $17 cash and postage stamps worth $36.

Manteo, N. C., Dec. 18.—[Special.]—A murky fog held down the crowd but failed to halt the observance yesterday of the thirty-fifth anniversary of the first airplane flight by the Wright brothers at nearby Kill Devil hill yesterday. Nearly 200 naval and coast guard planes were here for the celebration, but they were held to the ground by fog.

FARMERS CHARGE CHICAGOAN WITH GRAIN SWINDLE

Five Du Page county farmers went to the Marquette police station yesterday and identified Harry Hayes, 42 years old, 3216 Maypole avenue, as a swindler. They asserted that he represented himself as a grain broker and obtained truckloads of corn and wheat by promising to make payment or by giving worthless checks.

Hayes told police that he and his father owned a farm in North Dakota and that he had come to Chicago in September. He carried a letter showing that 200 cattle were to be shipped to him from North Dakota soon. The victims, who said Hayes had showed them the letter, signed complaints charging him with operating a confidence game.

BOYCOTT GERMAN MERCHANT SHIPS, AMERICAS URGED

Nazis Attack Is Planned, Latins Warned.

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Dec. 18.—A boycott by Latin America of the German merchant marine was advocated today by Prensa Libra in an editorial. The paper warned that the entire continent is threatened by economic penetration and armed attack from the totalitarian government.

The editorial charged that the attack will be made by the navy, augmented by the merchant marine which, it said, "are convertible auxiliaries."

It suggested the use of force to meet force "which will be used exclusively — never with reason, right, or justice—in the enslavement of European people. America must not suffer the same fate."

Sees Nazi Propaganda Repeated.

Prensa charged that the Latin American press which pretends to fear "Yankee imperialism," is only repeating Nazi propaganda.

"They are obeying servilely those whom they fear or who pay them," the paper said.

It charged that German merchant ships are armed or easily armed and added: "These ships are now used to carry to Europe the best of our products.

"The freight is paid in gold which permits them to arm and to attack us and we are paid with marks that are redeemable only in German goods in kind, the quantity and price of which is determined in Germany."

Urges All to Join Drive.

Prensa said that in order to aid the task begun at Lima "banks, merchants, planters, and all democratic and authentic Americans should unite in driving the German merchant marine from American ports."

Robbers Kidnap Salesman and Girl; Get $50 and Car

Three bandits last night kidnaped Frank Schulman, 29 years old, a salesman, and Miss Beverly Leve, 23, of 5128 Dorchester avenue, as they were parking his car near the Broadview hotel, 5540 Hyde Park boulevard, where he lives. The robbers drove Schulman and Miss Leve to 64th street and Woodlawn avenue, took $50 from Schulman, and then put him and Miss Leve out of the car, which they drove away.

SILENCE ENFOLDS CANTON, NOW IDLE VILLAGE OF 9,000

Onetime City of 1,500,000 a Specter of War.

BY ARTHUR SCHOLES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONGKONG, Dec. 4 [By Air Mail]. —Returning to Canton for the first time after the strenuous days of bombing and its attendant confusion and six weeks after the fall of the city to the Japanese, one is impressed with the complete silence which reigns.

Always throbbing with life, it is difficult to imagine Canton without the noise that accompanied the coming and going of so many people as usually thronged the streets and shops of a city of a million and a half population. But today the population of Canton is no more than 9,000.

First of all, the absence of the thousands of small craft was very noticeable, there being only a few boats close to the retaining walls of the island of Shameen, the foreign settlement. There were no rickshas to jostle those entering the streets of the city, and there were of course no buses. Only a casual private car flying the flag of some foreign nation and the occasional Japanese trucks rushing through the streets now break the silence of Canton.

Doors Open, No Trade.

How strange it is to see hotels, restaurants and shops, most of them with open doors, but with no guests and no buyers and sellers of wares. Charred ruins and flame-swept buildings stand as testimony to the fires which have raged. Flowers and shrubbery have wilted and are mute testimony of the absence of hands to provide refreshing water during the dry season.

And what of the silence of the night? Curfew sounds at 7 p. m. and after that there is no movement anywhere until the bugle sounds at daybreak. There is seldom a sound from dusk to dawn, except perhaps the call of a sentry here and there. The dry season forbids the croak of a frog or the chirp of a cricket. For several nights the sky was lighted by fires which burst forth in silence with no rush of fire engines and no cries of frightened people, the flames leaping from house to house and from street to street in ominous solitude.

Food Hard to Get.

No children scamper in and out of school gates, and the churches are still closed, their flocks scattered to all corners of Kwangtung province. It is only in the few refugee camps established with money from the people of Hongkong that songs of worship rise above the silence.

Canton recently has been called variously a city of suffering and a city of the dead, but it is perhaps no less weird as a city of silence. In days gone by the largest and richest city in Asia, it now lies in complete solitude. Hardly a cock heralds the dawn of day, there are no people in the marts of trade, never a pig roams the narrow streets and the problem of getting a few grains of rice for sustenance is a grave one.

The only change is seen in the sun whose setting once was clouded with the ascending smoke of a city on fire. Now it drops below the horizon in its original golden glow.

River Vessels Idle.

Along the Bund there is no movement for foreign shipping has been absent for nearly two months. Three British river steamers lie idle, bottled up. Foreign gunboats which have dared the Pearl river mines swing in freedom at their anchors.

Notwithstanding the conditions, the American community met together on the campus of Lingnan university to observe Thanksgiving day, the main address being given by the retiring American consul-general, Irving N. Linnell, and annual Thanksgiving proclamation of the President was read by the new consul-general, Merle S. Myers.

Except for the sale of loot, there is no business being done in the shops of Canton. Typewriters and cameras are being bought by foreigners for less than a dollar from plunderers who do not know the values of their spoils.

Overcome by Gas

Dr. Bernard Lipschultz with Mrs. Sophie Long, the mother, at county hospital.

Good luck rode with Joseph Thomas yesterday when he returned unexpectedly to his home at 1749 North Maplewood avenue.

He found his sister, Mrs. Sophie Long, 31 years old, unconscious on the dining room floor. In an adjoining room, also unconscious, were her son Robert, 6, and her daughter Rita, 5. All had been overcome by gas fumes from a small heater in the dining room.

Thomas summoned police and firemen. A fire department squad headed by Capt. Henry Spannenberg revived Mrs. Long and the children. They were taken to the County hospital, where the condition of the mother was regarded as serious.

"If we had been a few minutes later," said Capt. Spannenberg, "there would have been little chance to save them. Thomas said that he forgot something when he left and came back to tell Mrs. Long. He was just in time."

AMERICAS SHUT TO FOREIGN ISMS, LANDON WARNS

Tells Dictators They Must Reckon with U. S.

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 18.—(AP)—In sharp words Alf M. Landon, Republican presidential nominee in 1936, told the world tonight that the United States, regardless of the party in power in Washington, D. C., would "not tolerate any foreign government gaining a foothold on this continent."

Alfred M. Landon.

In a world-wide broadcast from the Pan-American conference, the United States delegate declared people of Americas were "horrified and shocked" by the "incredible brutality" of the world "on both sides of us."

He preceded that declaration with the statement that "unless we in the United States have become so soft that we no longer are concerned as to whether other countries get a foothold in this hemisphere," the time had come to go beyond "mere words and gestures."

An Answer to Argentina.

The speech was considered by many delegates as a bombshell hurled in the rivalry between the United States and Argentina over the problem of committing the 21 American republics to a strong declaration on solidarity and defense.

When Landon said "agents of totalitarian powers are busy spreading propaganda all over Central and South America to the effect that those countries cannot count on the continuity of policy of the United States," he answered Argentina's question: "After Roosevelt, what?"

He went ahead and declared the Monroe doctrin was one policy which the United States had pursued "for over a century regardless of election results."

Praises Secretary Hull.

He did not mention the "good neighbor" policy by name, however, although he gave praise to Secretary of State Cordell Hull, whose "wisdom and patience" he said had improved United States relations in South America.

Argentina has been insisting the United States was a potential threat to small South American nations because there was no assurance the good neighbor policy would be continued after President Roosevelt leaves office.

Because of Landon's emphasis upon the Monroe doctrin delegates considered the speech would be particularly distasteful to Argentina, which dislikes the doctrin.

Struggle for Lead in Parley.

Argentina has made a fight at this conference to take the lead in most important deliberations, particularly on the question of continental solidarity. She has insisted that no definite pacts be signed for mutual defense and that no specific condemnation of possible "outside aggression" be made in a conference declaration.

However, tonight Dr. Isidoro Ruiz Moreno, chairman of the Argentine delegation, who, it was understood, had been expecting instructions from his government at home in view of the apparent siding of virtually all other American nations with the United States viewpoint, told the Associated Press that "we will have an agreement in one or two days."

"We already have smoothed out some differences and I am sure a complete accord will be reached," he said.

Based on Peruvian Plan.

Ruiz Moreno said negotiations on the defense issue now were technically based on a Peruvian plan presented to the secretary of the conference late last night.

To foreign nations Landon addressed the warning that "we Americans have had our family disputes and may continue to have them but let me say that any one would be making a great blunder to mistake differences for disunity, for in the end we will always unite against any outside aggressor."

The western hemisphere, Landon said, is "facing a world which on both sides of us is growing harder and more brutal every day."

Americans, he said, "have nothing in common with these tyrannies."

"We are horrified and shocked by their incredible brutality," he declared. "We reject the philosophy of these Fascist, Nazi and communist powers as alien to everything we prize and stand for—to our hopes and ideals for justice and tolerance."

Saying the American republics desired to live in peace with every country in the world and to deal with controversies that may arise among themselves, Landon added:

"It would be a most serious matter to have this common political aim disturbed by ambitions or activities of outside countries which may believe they stand to gain by causing dissension among us."

Hits Fascist Activities.

The Kansan drew a graphic picture of the "vigorous and aggressive campaigns" communism, Nazism and Fascism are waging to gain positions of influence or control in Latin America.

He charged totalitarian states with "purposeful use of economic arrangements" to gain political control of Latin America.

"These controled states can, and many times do, disregard private profit calculations and even long run economic benefits," he said, "in their effort to extend their political influence or control. This tends in that way to increase the possible area and occasion of diplomatic conflict."

Landon emphatically declared "the duty of leadership in maintenance of democracy plainly devolves in large measure upon us. We must fulfill this leadership vigorously and fearlessly."

He expressed confidence communism and Nazism would not succeed in this hemisphere because "the spirit of liberty is too strong."

JOY-FOREVER IN CRYSTAL

By CALEB

HALFWAY between Stockholm and Malmo, in Sweden, lies the estate of Orrefors—whose name picturesquely derives from the orre, a small forest bird, and fors, meaning rapids or falls. Here in 1726 Lars Johan Silversparre was granted a charter from the Royal College of Mines to establish an ironworks, which operated until 1916 and was then closed.

Meantime, in 1898, a glassworks had been erected to utilize the abundance of timber on the estate; and in the short span of forty years was developed, from utilitarian beginnings in bottles, windows and other ordinary articles, the unexcelled art represented today in Orrefors engraved crystal. To the late Consul Johan Ekman of Gothenburg, who acquired the glassworks in 1913, goes the credit for this transformation—in that he gave glass experts and artists a free hand and infinite encouragement to accomplish, together with appointment of an Art Board of two painters as directors.

In the producing of Orrefors engraved crystal, then, we have the rare spectacle of artists, master blowers, engravers and cutters working side by side as accoucheurs of Beauty. Designers of international repute—Gate, Hald, Lindstrand, Ohrstrom, Palmquist, Landberg, and artisans like Gustaf, Eugen, Nils and Liss Bergkvist—represent the personalities embodied in the exquisite decanters, goblets, bowls, vases, bottles, urns and flower-holders now displaying their iridescence in our second floor collection of Swedish Crystal.

But the sense of luxurious weight, indescribable clarity, perfection of modeling, and inimitable figure—artistry combined in these Orrefors crystal creations defies any translation into language. Glass here gives form and fixity to light; becomes an affair of transparent poetry; produces through the eye a skipped beat in the heart!

Little wonder Field's collection of these glowing Orrefors masterpieces—one of the two largest in America—has for many weeks past been the magnet of thousands of crystal lovers! And whether a few dollars or hundreds are invested by the delighted purchaser, his will become an abiding pride of ownership which, thanks to the medium and its manipulation, time and usage can do nothing to impair.

HABITUAL CRIME ACT EFFECTIVE FOR REPEATERS

It Doesn't Help in Vicious First Offenses.

[This is another in a series of articles dealing with the parole situation in Illinois.]

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

The December grand jury is making effective use of the habitual criminal act, the only weapon against parole board mistakes. The jurors, aroused by the exposé of crimes committed by repeaters, have insisted that the habitual criminal act be applied wherever the facts will permit.

In the first two weeks of their term, the jurors have put habitual counts in thirteen indictments. First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley said that thus far this year fifty-one repeaters have been sentenced under this definite sentence act. This brings the total up to an even 250 since State's Attorney Courtney took office six years ago.

Expect Bill to Pass Again.

Prosecutor Crowley pointed out that the habitual criminal act accomplishes what is sought under the Ward-Schnackenberg bill, which was passed at the last session of the legislature, but vetoed by Gov. Horner. The advocates of the definite sentence law say they will pass the law again at the next legislative session.

The Ward-Schnackenberg bill, it was pointed out in the Criminal court, is necessary to stop parole board mistakes, because the habitual criminal act applies only to repeaters who actually have served time in prison. In many of these cases, even, witnesses can't be found to swear that the defendant is the same man who was involved in the original crime.

As court steps were being taken to tighten up enforcement of the habitual criminal act, another parole board mistake was cited in the long list already made public. Over a period of ten years Leonard Johns and his two brothers, James and Wesley, were committing violent crimes in several states.

Career Finally Ends.

Leonard Johns' career finally was ended in 1937 when Judge Francis Allegretti sent him to prison for life as an habitual criminal. Leonard had operated in wild west fashion, shooting at those who stood in his way. Despite the viciousness of his earlier crimes, he was able to get out of prison on parole after only seven years. He went right back into crime.

In 1927 Leonard, his brother James, and Joseph Tamanek, a parolee, started to make a specialty of robbing prosperous drug stores. They took large sums—for example, $800 in a Walgreen store at 4805 Madison street on Dec. 19, 1927. Francis L. Burger, manager of the store, said the robbers threatened to blow out the brains of any victims—employés and customers—who made a noise.

Gun Battle Described.

The three criminals committed eleven robberies, stole an automobile, and murderously assaulted three persons before the police finally caught them in a gun battle on Feb. 18, 1928. Policeman William Smith, wounded in the fight, described the affray:

"We saw their car at Elston and Kimball avenues. When we approached them and announced we were police, Leonard Johns and Tamanek started shooting.

"James Johns started the car. I grabbed hold of the automobile. The bandit car crashed into another automobile and I landed between the two cars. One of the men fired three shots at me as I crawled under a porch. I was wounded, but I managed to fire two shots back at them. Policemen Joseph Stryzinski and James Dornbeck also shot at the men. Tamanek was shot above the heart and in the right hand, and Leonard Johns in the forehead."

One Gets Life Sentence.

Tamanek recovered and got a life sentence under the habitual criminal act. The Johns brothers, however, got off with the customary one year to life sentences under the indeterminate sentences act.

Despite the attempt to murder the policemen and the numerous robberies the three had committed, Leonard Johns won a Christmas parole on Dec. 24, 1934. The parole board regarded him as reformed.

After Leonard got out, he joined up with another brother, Wesley Johns, alias Harry Wolf, with record as a bad man. They started a new career in crime. They took Joyce Karle, 24 years old, a waitress, along with them on robberies to act as a lookout and a lure.

These three were finally caught in 1937. Miss Karle got an indeterminate one year to life sentence in the Dwight reformatory at the same time Judge Allegretti put a permanent stop to Leonard's career by invoking the habitual criminal act.

Turned Over to U. S.

Wesley Johns was turned over to federal authorities for prosecution in Michigan on charges of robbery, shooting a policeman, and kidnaping.

When Judge Allegretti sentenced Leonard Johns, he commented:

"It is a good thing we have an habitual criminal act, so we can take care of men of this type. Unfortunately, these men sometimes commit murder between the time they are paroled and the time we get them back for prosecution under the habitual criminal act."

Admits Check Fraud

[TRIBUNE Photo.]
JEAN DEC.

Miss Jean Dec, 20 years old, who was arrested by North avenue police Saturday on charges of passing worthless checks, was viewed by crime victims at the detective bureau showup yesterday. She admitted that she obtained several hundred dollars from merchants in her neighborhood through the fraudulent checks. She lives at 1443 North Washtenaw avenue. She said that her mother would make restitution.

SHRINERS SIGN UP 62 ACTS FOR THEIR 2D WINTER CIRCUS

Arrangements are being completed for the opening of the second annual Medinah Temple shrine winter circus on Dec. 31 in the International amphitheater, Edward W. Shepherd, illustrious potentate of the Chicago Shriners, announced yesterday. Sixty-two acts, including Clyde Beatty, wild animal trainer, the Flying Concellos, trapeze artists, and Ruth Mix, daughter of Tom Mix, have been signed up for the show, which will continue to Jan. 15.

100 BEGIN DIGGING SUBWAY UNDER STATE ST. TODAY

About 100 workmen are to assemble at 748 North State street this morning and start digging the first unit of Chicago's $40,000,000 subway. Ceremonies inaugurating the project were held Saturday.

The unit will extend from Illinois street to Bellevue place, a distance of 3,640 feet. The start will be made at the center. The surface of State street will not be disturbed. F. J. Herlihy, the contractor, has arranged to sink a twenty foot square shaft to a depth of forty-five feet. Elevators will be installed in this shaft to bring excavated material to the surface. Trucks will then haul the debris away.

"The central location of the shaft," said Herlihy, "will enable us to divide our supervising forces equally and finish both halves of the tunnel at the same time. This results in an important saving and made possible our low bid of $2,744,604."

Eventually 500 workers will be employed on this unit. Bids on another section of the subway, in Clybourn avenue from Goethe street to Concord place, will be received Jan. 5.

MORE LIGHT ON RELIEF.

The facts brought out in the discussion between the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission and the local management of the Works Progress Administration are evidence of the manipulation of so-called relief for political purposes which ought to shock the most indifferent citizen. Sixty-six thousand persons in Illinois are on an eligible list of jobs under WPA. Thirty-six thousand are not eligible for relief, and there are no jobs for the 66,000 certified. Certification for nonexistent jobs is a cruel hocus pocus, but even worse is the rule that permits the WPA to certify jobs to persons not eligible for relief. The system is a scheme to make a showing for more appropriations from congress to be used for maintaining burocracy and the administration's political power; in short, for buying votes.

There is nothing more detestable than playing spoils politics with human misfortune. Everybody seems to agree with that, but so-called relief today is a flagrant example of that outrage.

A WISE DECISION.

The announcement last week that Mr. Ickes had decided not to take over the management of Chicago's affairs as mayor suggests that Mr. Roosevelt may have regained some of his once peerless political savvy.

Fortunately mayors of American cities are not yet appointed by the federal executive and Mr. Ickes would have had to submit his candidacy to the voters of Chicago. If he had done so he would have been the worst beaten aspirant that ever presented himself under the auspices of a principal party in this city. He had no importance in the political affairs of the community before his freakish elevation in the New Deal and was considerably less than popular. The overwhelming defeat of his mayoralty pretensions would have been a black eye for New Deal prestige.

WHY STILL ILL ARMED?

The heckling of the British ministry on charges of censorship is chiefly interesting to Americans because of the growing importance of the issue in our own public affairs. But we are also interested in the subject matter of the censorship or suppression complained of, namely, the state of equipment of the armed forces. In Great Britain this is an acute and immediate concern and the government may very well encourage a debate on the issue of censorship if it postpones a thorough examination of the facts of preparedness or an explanation of why, after several years of enormous expenditures, they are still facts.

Last summer a member of parliament, who was also an officer of the territorials, asked in the house of commons what had become of all the money appropriated for anti-aircraft defense for London. It was attempted to court martial him on the ground that he had revealed an official secret, and immediately the issue of parliamentary privilege absorbed the public attention. The question asked by the M. P. was forgotten. Now the London correspondent of the Baltimore Evening Sun says that "every one suspects, and many know, that the business of rearming on which at colossal cost the government has been engaged for three years has been scandalously mismanaged."

Whether scandalously mismanaged or not, the state of British armament is generally admitted to be seriously short of the nation's responsibilities, and it is hardly to be doubted that it would not be so deficient if there had not been a system of avoiding publicity and discussion which was in effect a censorship of public knowledge. Governments need not resort to any formal measures of official censorship to accomplish this. There are ways of discouraging candor and embarassing zeal within the services. Burocracies do not favor or even tolerate an enterprising criticism of accepted forms, nor do the politicians whose interests are in avoiding public disapproval or disillusionment. English officialdom is past master in discouraging uncomfortable publicity without openly denying it.

Meanwhile, in America, while the suggestion is not supported by acute conditions, it may occur to our own people that it does not imply a very satisfactory handling of our defense problems that military authority should find our moderate forces without adequate equipment. We have gone into all our wars short of necessary arms for even the small army we put into the field. We had only black powder in the Spanish war, long after smokeless powder was in use, and "scandalous mismanagement" is not too harsh a term for the equipment of our troops as late as the border operations of 1916. For a nation, machine minded and possessed of the greatest and most advanced mechanical industry, our armament in the late war was astoundingly deficient. That was twenty years ago and yet we are informed that again our small army lacks completely modernized equipment and that it is not a "thoroughly efficient defensive establishment."

The government has responsibility to keep the national defenses up. Of late it has spent huge sums and wasted more of them. Taxpayers may well be astonished, to say nothing of indignant, that the nation's defenses are not efficient and that its army is lacking in modern arms.

TWO TIMING NEUTRALITY.

The Export-Import bank has given China a credit of 25 million dollars in what appears to be a joint policy with Great Britain ostensibly in our case to promote the export of American surplus commodities, chiefly agricultural, which will turn out to be trucks and gasoline. The Japanese regard the transaction as a grant of military assistance to Chiang Kai-shek, which, small as it is, will enable him to continue resistance. The British government has been reported at times to be considering an acceptance of conditions as now established by the Japanese invasion and on that basis work in coöperation with the Japanese in the exploitation of Chinese resources and trade. This would involve the use of British capital to supply Japanese needs. Apparently British policy is not so directed, at least at present. British assistance as well as American is to be given the Chinese.

It is apparent, as reported, that the decision to help China was reached after the Japanese had shown truculence in answer to demands that they respect what are known as British and American rights in navigation and trade. How the granting of a credit to China fits in the puzzling American neutrality policy is as foggy as the policy itself. It is true that there is no war in China. It remains the Chinese "incident" in which, as the new Japanese ambassador to the United States remarks, the Japanese are trying to help the Chinese. Still the American government occasionally recognizes that something resembling a war is taking place, but Americans never know whether their country is applying embargoes on war material or which side it is helping by restricting trade and which side it is injuring. Obviously under a cash and carry policy Japan has access to American markets and China has not, and until recently Japanese purchases were chiefly airplanes.

The American governmental attitude remains hostile to the Japanese aggression. It also remains futile. To our state department the treaty guaranteeing the territorial integrity of China is still intact. The Japanese occupation of Chinese ports, cities, rivers, and railroads is a violation of it. Also our state department considers that the Chinese door is still open and that China is a sovereign nation with the government of which we still have treaty rights, although every treaty port is in the hands of Japan.

The outlaw Japan is an important customer of the United States and a great deal of our trade is supplying it with materials to extinguish the Chinese government, with which the United States still maintains diplomatic and trade agreements and upon which it relies for the preservation of its status in that part of the orient.

By granting credit to the Chinese government America does something to help out the still fighting but desperate Chinese army and also something which irritates but does not greatly injure the aggressive Japanese. Our treaties and our neutrality seem to have produced only a mess of contradictory theories and practices, closing the road to any sensible decisions and giving egress to confusion and snap judgment, working at cross purposes.

The neutrality ideas which were to produce such automatically wise and protective devices have resulted only in inconsistencies, confusion, and hypocrisies. Our neutrality legislation seems to have led only to senseless distortions of neutrality. In China, in Spain, and in Ethiopia we have theorized along one line and acted along another, always violating some sound principle both of neutrality and of trade rights, resulting in benefit to the aggressor and confusion to the state department.

AN ALASKAN KULAK.

It seems that Mr. Walter Pippel, late of Hennepin county, Minnesota, presently of Matanuska valley, Alaska, is a kulak. Mr. Pippel is one of the farmers to whom the government offered land in Alaska. He has been eminently successful, unlike some of the others who joined the colony at the same time. The dispatches from Anchorage say he has taken in $11,000 in the last two years.

Mr. Pippel desires to sell his crops as well as grow them. The United States government says that Mr. Pippel can't do that. He must sell through the coöperative which the government has established, and he must pay 5 per cent of his gross income for the privilege. Mr. L. V. Ray, the lawyer for the government, characterizes Mr. Pippel as "one of those colonists who want to pay for their land and be independent of the government." Mr. Ray intimates that they can't get away with that stuff while he's around. Mr. Pippel will be ejected if he continues to insist on paying his debt to the government and becoming independent.

We bought Alaska from Russia, but it looks as if we haven't acquired possession of the property. At any rate, the communist theory of collective farming is dominant in Matanuska valley. Mr. Pippel is getting the treatment accorded to Russian kulaks. In this country it is called the bum's rush. In Russia it is called liquidation. His offense is a desire to own the proceeds of his own labor and to be his own boss. To the Russian burocracy, and evidently to ours as well, this ambition is to be curbed at all costs.

Editorial of the Day

A SERIOUS MISCONCEPTION.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

Too often it is assumed that virtually all the refugees from Germany are Jews. It is because of this misconception that so little of the assistance given from America has come from Christian groups. Yet the fact is that a large proportion of refugees from Germany are Christians. Because anti-Semitic measures in the reich have been more flagrantly cruel, Americans got an erroneous impression of the real problem.

The most conspicuous illustration of this point is found in the Sudeten refugees. From this area some 400,000 persons of the Christian faith have fled to escape the Hitler terror. Only about 30,000 Jews can be counted as refugees from Sudetenland. These figures, necessarily approximate, are the estimates of the American committee for Christian German refugees.

Considering the refugee problem in general, it is clear that Jews are not the largest element. Mr. Myron Taylor, chairman of the intergovernmental committee on refugees, estimates that there are 660,000 persons who must leave Germany to escape persecution. Of these more than half, about 360,000, are Christians, many of them with some Jewish ancestry.

Nor does this complete the picture. Once the Nazis have done their worst to the Jews, persecution may not be ended. More violent attacks on the Catholic church already have been threatened, particularly in Austria, where it embraced nearly the whole population. Out of such future persecution new complexities in the refugee problem may develop. Assistance to refugees is a task for all of us, irrespective of race or religion.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

NAMING CHRISTMAS CHILD.

If your child is born on Christmas day and you wish to give him or her a name which commemorates the happy circumstance, the field of choice is limited. Noël is sound practice for boys; Natalia or Natalie is standard for girls—excellent and musical names, all three. But are there any other names signifying Christmas that may be recommended? Practically none. The Great Birthday has made an extremely small contribution to baptismal nomenclature in the European languages.

The word Christmas itself has been used, but it may be classed as an eccentricity. The Russian equivalent of Natalia is Natascha, which has charm but places the child in an exotic category. Among the Slovaks, a Christmas-born boy may be named Bozo or Bosko, but we trust that American parents, even of this racial background, will refrain. The Christmas-born girl among the Slovaks has better luck; she is Bozena. We knew a Bozena once, and she was a credit to the name, but she changed it to Bess.

* * *

Twelfth Night, or the Epiphany, has accomplished much more in naming children. It was the great religious festival of the Eastern Church, and was strongly marked with the Christmas influence. The Magi who came to Bethlehem bearing gifts have been active namemakers. According to tradition they were Gaspar, Melchior, and Balthazar. From the first, we get Jasper in English, Gaspard in French, Kaspar in German. Melchior's influence was negligible, but Balthazar has given Baldassare to Italy, Baltasar to Spain, and similar names to various other European countries.

* * *

This dissertation leads us to the conclusion, however, that if you do not like Noël or Natalia, you will do well to avoid symbolism. Why not name the child after a potential Santa Claus in the family?

HOLIDAY IN SUBURBS.

Yuletide parties soon will be in swing
And all the villagers will gather round;
With gladsome voice the festive songs we'll sing,
And good cheer all around us will abound.

The little cards will say, "Won't you drop in—
It's open house this one day of the year—
Partake of little appetizers thin,
And sip a bit of grog for friendship's cheer?"

You'll stagger through this holiday (sic) binge,
Enthused synthetically and feeling fit;
And then, with aspirin for ptomaine's cringe,
It's over, and you're darn well glad of it!

Poets View with Alarm.

The nature poets are so strangely silent now because they feel that there is something wrong. We are having a misfit Indian summer without its lovely coloring and balmy warmth. The earth should be storing up moisture against the parching heat of next summer. The plants should be covered with a snug white blanket to protect them from daily alternate freezing and thawing. When the snow comes, then there will be something to sing about. Gaycella.

Boz Versus Boz.

I would like to add to the story of Charles Dickens' brother, Augustus [12-15-'38], that while Dickens was giving readings on his second American tour in 1868, Chicago was deliberately omitted because of its connection with his brother. Though Augustus was once a favorite brother, he had made a mess of his life and Dickens had lost all patience with him. Chicago newspapers claimed his widow was living in poverty and that Dickens refused to help her, but he issued a statement to the effect that the real Mrs. Augustus Dickens was living in England and that he aided in her support. Margaret Samson.

ODE TO A MILD DECEMBER.

The winter's still most incomplete
And right unsatisfactory;
To me, it's backward, stubborn, and
In fact, a bit refractory!

For I have yet one night to hear
That most nostalgic sound
Upon the crystal-goblet air,
When the earth is whitely bound

In deep-wrapped snow . . . to cut the tropes
And get a normal talk,
I yearn to hear a snow-shovel grate
Upon the frosty walk!

El Chumpo's Revenge.

The verses bearing the title, "El Chumpo Learns Spanish," published in this column on Monday, Dec. 12, under the signature, "Tom McHale," are identified by F. G. Gordon as familiar to old timers in the Latin-American republics. He says:

"They are the least offensive stanzas of a satirical ballad which was written in the '90s by an American consul to celebrate his release from duties at La Guayra, Venezuela. He had the verses printed on handbills and arranged for their general distribution on the ship on which he had booked passage back to 'God's country.' Some versions of the story state that the sailing was delayed by boiler trouble, that the port authorities learned of the consul's indiscretion, and that he barely escaped with his life. Cordell Hull probably would not have approved of the entire affair."

SUGAR AND LATE AFTERNOON FATIGUE.

Do you have a daily "let down"? With some there comes a time—around 4 or 5 p. m.—when fatigue seems to be overwhelming. Every diabetic who is accustomed to insulin understands that a sense of collapse may be suffered due to the fact that there may be too little sugar in the blood. For this reason many are advised to carry a sweet with them wherever they go for the purpose of warding off such an attack.

But once in a while this symptom may be encountered in one who is not afflicted with diabetes. This may account for the evident weakness which affects some of us in midafternoon. The trouble may be brushed aside with the remark, "After I get home, have a good dinner, and rest a little I will be all right." Perhaps this explains the tea habit, which has taken such a hold on our British friends, or the hankering for a piece of candy a few hours after luncheon.

A severe case of this nature was reported recently in which the victim, a man, aged 41, had noted for nearly a dozen years sensations of tingling preceding a spell akin to prostration. At times, when reading, the words would run together and his thoughts would become confused. Speech would be drawling and his gait unsteady. Realizing that a seizure was on the way he would reach his house as quickly as possible and drop into a chair. The customary hour was near the end of the day's work. This patient learned for himself that if he could eat he would improve and that even a cup of sweetened tea was sufficient to obliterate the discomfort.

Analysis of his blood showed too little sugar. In other words, the whole episode was based on the fact that he was undergoing carbohydrate starvation, although his meals contained adequate foods. It was then found on examination of the alimentary tract that he was not digesting starches, as large quantities appeared in the stools entirely unchanged.

While this may be an extreme illustration, physicians are probably not recognizing scores of individuals whose blood glucose does not remain at a sufficiently high level to keep the functions of all the organs at par. It may be that we should encourage a snack or a bon bon late in the day for all those who undergo an overweening sense of tire which is similar to that experienced when one goes without eating and endeavors to carry on his routine duties. In other words, all may not be able to hoard sugar [glycogen] with equal facility. Some may hive up enough to last for 48 to 72 hours, and hence will not be affected even after missing two or three meals. But every physician has encountered persons who will develop symptoms promptly should a single important article of diet be omitted. Starvation headache is not rare.

The chief reason for calling attention to this disorder [hypoglycemia] is to caution those who are reducing that should profuse perspiration, trembling, or a feeling of emptiness in the pit of the stomach be observed, there is probably too little sugar in the blood.

Physicians are able to measure the exact percentage of this substance in the circulation. There must be a certain quantity else the brain and the nervous system as well as the muscles will be undernourished. Caution should be observed in any slimming plan to the end that nutrition shall not drop to the point where distressing manifestations will ensue. That this condition is reasonably common is borne out by the work of Martin and others who studied more than 400 patients exhibiting the symptoms, none of whom had received insulin. The circulating fluid of this large group contained less than half the normal quota and with many the manifestations occurred because dietary restrictions had been carried too far.

LEG CRAMPS.

Mrs. B. writes: My husband, aged 64, suffers from cramps in the calves of the legs after he goes to bed. What causes this? Is there a remedy?

REPLY.

The cause is a slight anemia of the muscles. This comes about because of narrowed blood vessels—or what we call arteriosclerosis. Before retiring, a hot foot bath maintained for thirty minutes, with the water reaching to the knees, is helpful. This should be employed routinely for many months. Be sure that the feet are warm at night.

INVOLVES KIDNEYS.

F. R. C. writes: What is meant by "albumin in the urine"? What kind of a schedule should a person recovering from secondary nephritis follow?

REPLY.

Albumin is a normal body protein which finds its way into the urine under abnormal conditions, involving the kidneys. If the condition persists it may mean that the renal organs are being injured. Treatment is largely rest and diet. Each case, however, must be managed individually by the physician in charge.

ESTATE SETTLEMENT.

Chicago, Dec. 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. My parents passed away in 1931 and ever since I have been trying to close the estate. There was a will which disposed of stocks, bonds, and mortgages.

2. The lawyer for the estate keeps putting off turning them over so they can be settled among the heirs. He told me the Probate court was closed. I went over to the Probate court and the clerk told me I would have to get a lawyer. The lawyer for the estate has been paid and the stocks, bonds, and mortgages are not worth very much. I cannot afford another lawyer.

3. Isn't there some way the lawyer can be compelled to turn them over? M. K.

1. Ordinarily a probate estate should be closed shortly after the expiration of the year allowed for filing claims.

2. We suggest that you ask the clerk of the court to bring pressure on him to close the estate.

3. You might try notifying him that unless he finishes his job you will report him to the Bar association. We assume that it is a Chicago case.

HERE'S A RAILROAD REMEDY.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—The states and the nation furnish for the transportation by motor vehicles rights of way improved with graded roadbeds, bridges, culverts, concrete slab tops, with traffic guidance signs, complete for safe operation on highways by drivers, 16 years of age, at a cost to the users of a yearly license fee and a tax on motor fuel only.

The railroads should be furnished by our government with the same facilities for similar operation of their trains of cars. That is, the war department should take over by purchase of all outstanding bonds, except those for rolling stock, the ownership of all railroad rights of way, roadbeds, bridges, culverts, tracks, yard stations, freight and round houses, coal chutes, signal systems, etc., and maintain them for operation in peacetime by the railroad companies, charging them a yearly license fee on each car operated, which will work out to the same amount per passenger mile and ton mile operated that the present bus and truck license fees and gas tax amount to per passenger and ton mile operated by them.

Our government needed and took over railroads once and, while I hope not, may have to again.

Whatever the cost may be, the railroads have earned it as, but for them, our population would not be spread out thickly over the interior of our vast country, with cities and towns away from the seaboard and navigable waters as they are today.

Operation by the companies should not be as costly as government owned and operated railroads in Europe.

C. D. BEDFORD.

SOUTH AMERICA: A WORRY.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—The shallowness of your "bogeyman" editorial is a far cry from the propounded "greatness" of the paper. You say the danger of a Nazi or Fascist coup in the Americas is far-fetched.

Brazil between 1884 and 1933 admitted approximately 1,400,000 Italians, 150,000 Germans, and 150,000 Japanese. Argentina finds itself littered with a bedlam of Nazis and Italian Fascists.

I know the aggressive tactics of Germany and Italy and personally I would prefer to be frightened into activity by a so-called "bogeyman" than lulled into a sense of false security by the philosophy of THE TRIBUNE editor.

L. J. JACOBSON.

ANOTHER HUGE LOAN.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—Roosevelt is now preparing a huge loan for South America, which is still in default on many old pre-depression bonds. This money is to be used to subsidize exports to Latin America—to drive out German competition. But we just refused a new trade treaty with Germany because she subsidizes exports.

With American millions already confiscated in Mexico, Roosevelt wants us to dump more taxpayers' money into Latin American lands which are very apt to follow Mexico's recent example.

Europe owes us 11 billion and Latin America about 3 billion. We'd better collect a bit of that before starting another lending crusade. F. S. M.

COIN BOX FOR SLUGS.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—Why doesn't the telephone company invent a coin box for slugs, near public telephones, where one can place a nickel in the slot and turn out a slug as in chewing gum machines? This would mean a lot to people who have only a few minutes to spare, instead of waiting in line, sometimes as long as ten minutes.

G. GASS.

SAN FRANCISCO.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 12.—Mr. Merryman of the chamber of commerce has been talking over the radio tonight in criticism of the statements of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and others about this town of ours being a "ghost town." I wish that in his next broadcast he would tell:

How long it will be [not long] before there will not be a freighter using the Pacific coast, between our ports?

How much class "A" building is there now in progress in San Francisco?

In what other American city are the city administration and the police department so under the domination of labor racketeers?

What next is San Francisco going to do? We built the two bridges [they falsely inflated conditions here] and now we have spent millions on a "Fair." I repeat. What next, little man?

Don't forget to tell the folks next week that we have more actual communists, per capita, than any other city [town or village] in these here United States.

Excuse the typing. My steno moved to Los Angeles last week so she could be away from the "cemetery atmosphere" around here.

ALSO IN THE RED.

SUPPORT THE DIES INQUIRY.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—After listening to last night's broadcast of Chairman Dies of the congressional committee investigating un-American activities, my blood boils at the thought of the way in which communist, Nazi, and Fascist plotters have been allowed to spread their hateful teachings in our land of liberty.

Fellow Americans, there's something wrong here. Let's find out what it is. If your congressman and senator are not on their toes next month to get at the bottom of this rotten business, go after them and let them know their constituents demand nothing less than 100 per cent Americanism from them NOW—not some time in the dim future!

AMERICAN.

A LESSON FROM CAPE TOWN.

Edison Park, Ill., Dec. 15.—I read with interest in THE TRIBUNE a letter about the street car service in Chicago. Some years ago in Cape Town, South Africa, the street car service was just as bad as it is here. Then the health department made them put on extra cars and now they have sitting room only. Nobody is allowed to stand or overcrowd. It works one. Why can't they do the same thing here?

A SOUTH AFRICAN.

WOMEN'S VOTE A DISAPPOINTMENT.

Shumway, Ill., Dec. 14.—I do not agree with your reader that giving the vote to women was a mistake because of useless expense. Money is of little worth compared to the real things of life, but still I think many of us find the vote is a disappointment.

During the years we women pleaded for equality with men our strongest argument was that "women would purify politics." Well, have we? There are many more women than men, so if we had set ourselves earnestly to purifying things at the start, as we said we would, all government would be better than it is now. What we have lost in getting our political equality far outweighs the gain.

We have fewer sweet and lovable homes, fewer contented women, less goodness. And each year public supervision necessarily reaches further into the home for the welfare of children. We shall hold onto our franchise, but that purifying business of ours was a failure. ADELAIDE M. PEEL.

BAD VAN BUREN SERVICE.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—Today! Today! Not tomorrow! I want a street car to get me home from work. Ever since the depression the Van Buren line has been terrible so far as service is concerned.

Before the depression this line had wonderful service. Mind you, I'm not condemning the employés on this line, as there aren't enough cars to handle the rush of pedestrians, and to top it all off they lengthened the line. Madison, Harrison, and Van Buren handle the bulk of the west side transportation.

After all we pay seven cents for a ride, but not to get crushed in a crowd. Plenty of west side riders will verify my statement. GEORGE HANSEN.

DECREPIT RACINE CAR LINE.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—Having laid up my car for the winter, I am forced to live in a part of the city supposed to be served by the Racine street car. Judging from the service we receive, a more appropriate name would be "Rancid." During the day when there is small demand the supply is adequate, but through the morning and evening hours when the rush is on conditions in general are appalling.

It may be due to decrepitude that these pseudo-conveniences are forced to run in a bunch like bananas, but—hanging to an iron brace while riding steps in order to get to work somewhere near on time is both brutal and dangerous—it is all they offer, take it or leave it.

AUTO MASSACRE TOLL IN DETROIT CUT 43% IN YEAR

Improved Police Methods Are Credited.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 18.—[Special.]—This fourth largest city in America has cut its automobile death toll 42.9 per cent during 1938 from the 1937 figure. In Chicago the street massacre has dropped during this period about 19.5 per cent. The better showing here is credited to an improvement in police enforcement methods. The Chicago reduction followed a national trend.

For the last eighteen months experts from the trafic bureau of the International Association of Chiefs of Police at Northwestern university have been developing the trafic enforcement methods of the Detroit police. Much has been done and much is being done that Chicago might profitably emulate.

Engineer Sees Improvement.

"The results of the better police work are evident in touring about the city," said George Barton, engineer for the Chicago Motor club, who has been looking into the situation here. "In former years, for example, the cheaters at stop signs and signals were as common here as they continue to be in Chicago. Today the Detroit motorist is better mannered and the accident statistics show the benefit of this reform."

Kenneth R. Dickinson, field representative of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, who has been working with the local department here, explained the chief reason for this improved enforcement. It does not consist solely in making more arrests. It consists of concentrating man power at times and places of high accident experience and of concentrating enforcement on those types of violations causing the mishaps at these times and places.

Wholesale Arrests Resented.

"Without this scientific approach to the problem," said Dickinson, "police departments wanting to reduce street deaths are inclined to make wholesale speed arrests. The motorcycle men, to make a large number of arrests, travel pavements where the pace of trafic is high because faster speeds are safe there. The public resents this harassment and the so-called safety campaign is dropped."

For the scientific approach, obviously there is a need for accurate and comprehensive accident reports and records. As part of its modernization the Detroit department created an accident investigation squad of twenty cars. Chicago, with twice the population, has twelve such cars.

For patrol of thoroughfares at dangerous times and places a motorcycle squad was enlarged to 168 men and given coupes for riding in inclement weather. A recent check in Chicago found forty-eight men on the motorcycle detail.

Hundred Cars Patrol Trafic.

In addition 100 Detroit district police cars patrol trafic in their respective territories, and are instantly available by radio for crime work. Police Commissioner James P. Allman of Chicago, with an outstanding record for crime reduction, has been reluctant to have his touring crime specialists give attention to trafic violations, apprehensive that this might distract them from their specialties. Sergt. Frank Weiland, second in command of the accident prevention bureau here, told of experience contrary to Allman's apprehension.

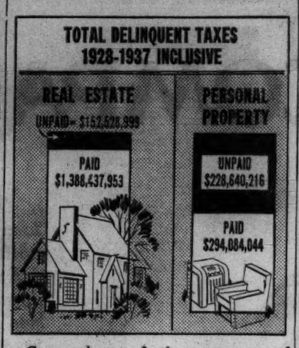
"Last year," said the sergeant, "this squad received more citations than any other for the apprehension of criminals. Crimes of violence are motorized. Police trafic officers not only protect law abiding citizens from each other's mistakes and misdemeanors, but also curb the felon's transportation system."

Since the first of this series of articles dealing with bad driving and weak policing in trafic in Chicago and environs the Chicago park district has announced that it will double the number of patrol cars on the boulevards by the first of the year. And the council police committee has recommended for the 1939 budget the creation of a 250 man trafic patrol platoon.

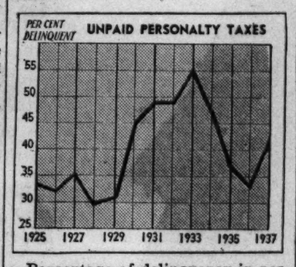
A need for more enforcement in Chicago is shown by a measuring rule used by trafic engineers. According to Mr. Barton, there is in Chicago a ratio of approximately three convictions for a "moving vehicle violation" for each personal injury accident. In Detroit there are thirty such convictions for each such accident.

"This is a quantitative measurement of police activity," said the motor club engineer. "Mere quantity is not desirable. It is undesirable, arousing public antipathy, because it is not aimed at accident reduction. An increased number of arrests should be aimed directly at accident causes, at accident places, and at accident times."

Personalty Tax Lags



Comparison of the amounts of personal and real property taxes paid and unpaid over the last ten years. Realty taxes levied have been nearly three times as large as personalty taxes, but the personalty tax delinquency is almost twice as great as unpaid realty taxes.



Percentage of delinquency in personal property taxes for each year since 1925.

The greatest need for corrective measures to reduce tax delinquencies in Cook county is in personal property rather than real estate taxes, according to a report prepared by a subcommittee of the Illinois legislative council.

The report shows that while real estate tax levies over the last ten years have been nearly three times as great as personalty taxes, the amount of unpaid personalty is 50 per cent greater than delinquent real estate taxes.

The report, with recommendations for corrective legislation, will be submitted to the council, State Representative Edward J. McCabe, chairman of the committee, said yesterday. McCabe is also Assessor John S. Clark's chief deputy. Proposed legislation clears through the council before reaching the floor of the general assembly.

The survey shows that of the tax levies for the years 1928 through 1937, $1,388,437,953 of real estate taxes out of total realty levies of $1,540,966,952 was collected. This leaves a delinquency of $152,528,999.

For the same period only $294,084,044 out of total personalty bills of $228,640,216 unpaid. Collection figures $288,640,216 unpaid. Collection figures are as of last Nov. 17.

TRAIN HITS AUTO ON CROSSING IN ALSIP; THREE DIE

Two Men Killed Outright; Woman Fatally Injured.

Two men were killed outright and a woman was fatally injured last night when their automobile was struck by an Indiana Harbor Belt freight train on the Baltimore and Ohio tracks at 119th street and Cicero avenue, Alsip.

The men were Charles G. Obenland, 64 years old, 6234 Wayne avenue, owner of a hardware store at 4747 Broadway, and his nephew, Alfred Obenland, 24, a medical student living at 1945 Congress street during the school year. The elder Obenland's wife, Minnie, about 60, died later in the Little Company of Mary hospital.

On Their Way Home.

The Obenlands were returning to Chicago from a visit with relatives in Penfield, Ill. Their automobile stalled on the tracks as the freight train approached. According to Sergt. Wilbur Kennedy of the state police, they apparently became panicky and tried to start the car instead of leaping out. The crossing is protected by flasher signals.

The bodies of two youths burned to death in an automobile crash on Ashland avenue near the 26th street bridge early yesterday were identified as those of William Klimek, 21 years old, 5721 Archer avenue, and Irving Dziedzic, 18, of 5844 55th street. A companion, Mathew Klimek, brother of William, was thrown clear when the car struck a trolley pole and burst into flames. His condition is critical.

U. of Illinois Student Lives.

Robert W. Lorentz of 1463 East 69th place, and members of his family were busy yesterday denying reports that he is dead, as was stated in a dispatch Sunday morning from Champaign, where Lorentz is a freshman at the University of Illinois. He was injured in a bicycle-auto crash Thursday, but will recover.

Wilbur Young, 24 years old, of Wheaton, was killed yesterday when his car plunged from Roosevelt road near Winfield and struck a tree. Young, a mechanic of 512 Lyons avenue, in the suburb, died while being taken to a Geneva hospital.

An unidentified man about 45 years old suffered a possible skull fracture last night when he was struck by an automobile at Douglas boulevard and Spaulding avenue. He was taken to Mount Sinai hospital. Leon Rosen, 3444 Grenshaw street, was the driver.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 861 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 662 were killed in Chicago, where 19,749 were injured during the same period.

5 AUTOISTS DIE, 6TH INJURED AS TRAIN HITS CAR

Port Clinton, O., Dec. 18.—(AP)—Five persons were killed and a sixth was injured when a passenger train struck an auto on a grade crossing at nearby Rocky Ridge today.

Dr. R. R. Semon, Ottawa county coroner, said the victims were Arthur Below, 42 years old, of near Rocky Ridge; Mrs. Arthur Below, 38, wife of Arthur; Calvin Below, 14, their son; Martin Madison, 59, a neighbor; Alice Floriana, 9, of Oak Harbor.

Orlena Below, 17, a daughter, suffered serious injuries.

Dr. Semon said a west bound New York Central train struck the auto at a five track crossing. The coroner said there were no warning lights at the crossing. A watchman is on duty during the daytime.

THE MASSACRE Chicago's 1938 Trafic Toll

More than 88% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

PARK CUSTODIAN AND DAUGHTER KILLED IN CRASH

Oregon, Ill., Dec. 18.—[Special.]—John Keegan, 70 years old, caretaker at the Pines State Park, and his daughter, Ann, 27 years old, were killed last night when an automobile occupied by a Christmas shopping party collided with a CCC truck, five miles west of here.

Mrs. Mayme Keegan, 60 years old, wife of John, and another daughter, Mary Ellen, 22, were seriously hurt.

John Dent, 45 years old, driver of the CCC truck, and his two companions, Kazeninner Pistakes, 44, and Sinis Marshall, 44, also were injured.

Mailing of Auto Licenses Halted Till After Dec. 25

To avoid burdening the postal system while the Christmas mailing rush is at its peak, the state automobile department at Springfield announced yesterday it will mail no more license plates until Dec. 26. As applications are received, plates will be addressed for mailing and laid aside until the Christmas rush is over.

Delay Wedding as Airplane Propeller Hits Bridegroom

Augusta, Ga., Dec. 18.—(AP)—A spinning airplane propeller caused postponement of the wedding of John Gearring, 21 years old, of Illmo, Mo., scheduled for tonight at Tampa, Fla. Gearring, his fiancée, and friends, attracted by a barnstorming plane, had stopped at an air field. Gearring took a ride, stepped from the plane, and accidentally turned his head into the path of the propellor. He was taken to a hospital, where his condition was reported fair.

POPE PRESIDES AS SCIENTISTS HOLD MEETING

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Pope Pius XI. braved cold and rainy weather today to go to the pontifical academy of science in the Vatican gardens to preside at the opening of the third academic year.

The pontiff delivered a 45 minute discourse on science and religion to a brilliant assemblage of scientists, prelates, and diplomats. Dr. Alexis Carrel, member of the Rockefeller institute for medical research, New York City, and winner of the 1912 Nobel prize in medicine, was named a member of the committee to govern the academy's activities.

The academy was instituted by the pope to accord special church recognition to accomplishments in science. Its membership of seventy is not confined to Catholic scientists.

Wash Your Fine Fabrics this New Safe Way!

LOOK AT THOSE SUDS!
In hardest water, Dreft will make 5 times more suds than any soap you ever used. And make them at just the right water temperature to help guard all your fine washables against shrinkage and fading! Think of Dreft's economy—ounce for ounce, in hard water, it does twice the work of any fine fabric soap!

DISHWASHING MIRACLE!
By themselves . . . without any toweling or polishing . . . Dreft-washed dishes and glasses dry sparkling clean! With never a trace of dull, filmy scum—even in hardest water! And being a fine fabric suds, gentle Dreft is, of course, safe for your hands.

EVEN THE FINEST SOAPS CANNOT OFFER THESE ADVANTAGES:

1. COMPLETELY NON-ALKALINE SUDS
. . . giving you maximum protection against wash-fading

2. SUDS THAT NEVER LEAVE "SCUM"
. . . assuring true color brightness and fabric softness

3. RICH SUDS IN HARDEST WATER
. . . 5 times more suds than any soap you ever used

Now a startling suds improvement—and it's the greatest in a thousand years—brings you a new standard of safety in washing all your fine fabrics!

No more reason to fear that wash-fading will rob expensive silks and woolens of their lovely colors. This wash-fading, caused by alkali, is a thing of the past! Because now—with the introduction of Dreft—for the first time you have a washing suds that is completely non-alkaline! That cannot fade silk and wool colors any more than water will!

Equally big news is the amazing fact that Dreft can never leave "scum"! It's this cloudy, clinging film . . . the same thing that makes "that ring around your washbowl" . . . that buries colors alive and coarsens fabric textures. Again . . . in Dreft . . . for the first time you have a suds that completely removes scum—and never leaves any of its own . . . even in hardest water!

And speaking of hard water—whether it's hot or cold—Dreft dissolves instantly and completely, bursting into masses of foamy, energetic suds! 5 times more suds in hardest water than any soap you ever used!

Dreft, we believe, offers you the greatest assurance of safety you've ever had in washing stockings, lingerie, silk prints and woolens. Promise these fine fabrics of yours a brighter long life by washing them this new way! Get Dreft from your dealer today. Procter & Gamble.

"SEE . . . IT WASN'T REALLY FADED!"
Don't you be too hasty about discarding some treasured print or piece of lingerie because it looks faded. Its gay freshness may be buried under a film of color-dimming scum! Washing with Dreft will banish this film—bring back the hidden sparkle and color. And help keep it that way—because Dreft forms no scum whatsoever—even in hardest water.

WOODEN SOLDIER IS ON THE MARCH THIS CHRISTMAS

New Realism Is Displayed in Toyland.

What the small boy wants in his toys, judging from the array in the Christmas toy departments, is realism. That is exactly what he is getting.

Toy soldiers no longer are wooden in their poses. They leap, run, lounge, or kneel. A bright mechanical drummer not only beats his drum when wound up, but beats a sharp rhythmic rat-a-tat-tat. Toy airplanes, inexpensive ones, do not just roll along the floor; they leap into the air, make two complete revolutions, and settle down again to a little sober rolling.

New Trains Bellow.

Mechanical trains no longer emit only an idle, clacking whistle. They sough long, deeply, and sonorously. Even toys for the boy of 2 years, such as a small wooden wagon pulled by two wooden horses, are purposeful. A load of shining, new logs is piled in the body.

The ancient rocking horse has succumbed to this trend. He still rocks, yes, but his mane, once painted, now swings with the motion, and, sadder still, he may be removed from his simple rocker and rolled along, on wheels, on the floor.

Animals no longer are shown in cages of iron bars. Instead, a lion, lioness, and two cubs peep merrily out from a natural rock grotto, as at the Brookfield zoo. Khaki tents no longer come with tin soldiers; in their place are moss green dugouts, with the insigna of the Red Cross painted on their roofs, and gadgets labeled "gas alarm" and "battle stand" in easy view.

Autos Have Safety Tires.

Steam engines snort and toy automobiles honk. Small racing cars have enormous pneumatic tires labeled "safety feature," so that they right themselves if overturned. [Note to parents: They don't scratch the furniture.]

An ironic touch in this wide array is the display of toy soldiers, shown in wider variety this year than ever before. Few, if any, are shown in fighting mood. It's all very gala and jolly.

The German troops, for instance—and you can buy men from almost every country—are a happy, smiling lot. They are attired in what seem to be lounge suits. One, his shirt off, applies a bath towel to his strong, bared back as he bares his teeth in a wide smile. Another, seated, plays merrily at an accordion. Others are drinking, eating, sleeping, or waiting to eat, drink, or sleep.

Highlanders on March.

The Highlanders, too, are a gay outfit in kilts with bagpipes dangling everywhere. They are on the march. The British infantrymen are more imposing. One squints through binoculars. Another nervously clutches a machine gun.

One soldier set contains a complete band, the players in bright red jackets. Another is a troop of mountain artillerymen with a team of gray mules loaded with what are labeled "quick-firing guns."

After this it is pleasantly dull to wander back into the train department and find a new work train in full operation. A powerful engine pulls a derrick, a flat car is piled with logs and railroad ties. Another carries two giant flood lights, which work. A fourth carries a cable drum. Sidetracked near it is a shining, white milk car.

C. I. O. STRIKERS TIE UP CLEANING PLANT AT GARY

The plant of the Peacock Cleaners at 920 Adams street, Gary, has been tied up for a week by a C. I. O. union strike. On Saturday Judge Bertram Jenkins of the Superior court at Gary issued a temporary injunction forbidding pickets to interfere with passage of loyal employés into the plant. Attorney Gilbert Gruenberg, who represents the concern, charged last night the court order was being disobeyed and that the sherif's office at Crown Point had declined to enforce it. The plant has twenty-three employés. Gruenberg said thirteen were affiliates of an American Federation of Labor union.

Newark, N. J., Dec. 18.—[Special.]—Health Officer Charles V. Crester has started a campaign to reduce the possibility that Santa Clauses may spread disease among children. Crester has ordesed his staf to see that the Santas' beards are sterilized, that the Santas do not kiss children, and that the jolly old gents wear white gloves, changed frequently.

WEEK IS FILLED WITH CHRISTMAS PARTIES, MUSIC

Loop programs of Christmas carols and special parties both for business men and needy children will feature Chicago's pre-Christmas week.

Today at noon the carillon bells in the tower of the First Methodist church, Washington boulevard and Clark street, will ring out seasonal songs. The program will last for two hours each day, with one of similar length daily at 5 o'clock. In addition, the melodies will be relayed by special wire to the offices of the State Street council in the Republic building, 209 South State street.

The members of the Chicago Association of Commerce will hold their annual Christmas party tonight in the Stevens hotel.

At the Home for Destitute Crippled Children, 1653 Maypole avenue, more than 100 patients will receive an advance visit from Santa Claus today.

The Milwaukee road choral club, composed of sixty employés, will sing in the lobbies of the Bismarck, Morrison, La Salle, and Sherman hotels between 6:45 and 9:15 p. m. tonight. The Chicago Association of Commerce glee club, with 85 singers, will present a program of Christmas songs tonight in the Great Northern hotel.

BID KELVINATOR OFFICIAL LUCK ON HAWAII TRIP

A group of his friends gathered last night at the Chicago and Northwestern station to see Harry T. Hollingshead, Chicago distributor for the Nash-Kelvinator corporation, off for a visit to California and Hawaii. Mr. Hollingshead said he expected to be away about two months. In Los Angeles he is to meet Charles W. Nash, chairman of the board of Nash-Kelvinator. They are to board a clipper plane on Dec. 27 and fly to Honolulu. Among those at the station were Miss Sylvia Phillips, Mr. Hollingshead's secretary, and Miss Edna O'Dell.

Some One Is Lacking in Christmas Spirit

The lights gleamed brightly on the big Christmas tree set in front of the First Presbyterian church at 64th street and Kimbark avenue. Men of good will who passed by admired it. The Rev. Harold L. Bowman, the pastor, rejoiced in its beauty. That, of course, was on Saturday night. Yesterday morning, when the pastor looked out, there was only a hole where the tree had been.

CAROLS TO RING OUT TODAY FROM TRIBUNE TOWER

Revive Annual Custom for Shoppers, Workers.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

At 5 o'clock today W-G-N renews what has come to be a joyous custom of the week before Christmas—the broadcasting of carols and other traditional holiday music. For an hour Christmas music will ring out from loudspeakers hung high on Tribune tower. The first 30 minutes of the music, originating in the W-G-N studios, will be broadcast from coast to coast over the Mutual Broadcasting system.

When the station originated these broadcasts six years ago homeward bound shoppers and workers who heard the music as far southward from Tribune tower as Madison street and northward to Chicago avenue were a little startled. Today the broadcasts are almost traditional. A legion of listeners awaits them each year. Many families make special trips to Tribune square to view the big Christmas tree and to hear the carols.

Opera Stars Will Sing.

Stars of the opera, several of whom are heard regularly over W-G-N, and the finest of the city's church choirs are to provide the music for these daily broadcasts. Attilio Baggiore, W-G-N tenor, is to be the soloist on today's program, with Hans Muenzer of the W-G-N Concert orchestra playing a violin solo. Soloists for subsequent programs, in order, will be William Miller, tenor; Eleanor La Mance, contralto; Kathryn Witwer, soprano; Margery Mayer, contralto, and Mark Love, basso.

The Edgewater Presbyterian church choir, directed by Samuel Burkholder, will sing today. Leonard Salvo, staf organist, and the W-G-N Concert orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, will join in the program.

CAROL SING TOPS GOOD FELLOWS' ACTIVITIES TODAY

Two Luncheons to Aid Basket Drive.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Two luncheons and a radio carol sing by 500 high school pupils will be features of Good Fellow activities in Chicago today.

The public is invited to attend the carol sing, from 3:15 to 3:45 o'clock in front of a huge tree in the plaza between Tribune Tower and the W-G-N studio building. Miss Helen Howe, director of music in the public schools, will lead the 500 singers from five schools. The first 15 minutes of the program will be broadcast over W-G-N. Miss Gertrude Lawrence and her supporting cast in the play "Susan and God," who are Good Fellows, will make a brief appearance.

Capt. Lew Bodine.

Louise Dunne.

The Phi Kappa Psi fraternity's third annual Good Fellow luncheon will be held in the La Salle hotel's Red room, and for the first time the Illinois chapter of the American Guild of Organists will have a Good Fellow luncheon, in the Normandy House restaurant, 800 Tower court.

Felton Star to Sing.

An added attraction to the Phi Psi program will be Miss Louise Dunne, singer with the Happy Felton orchestra. Capt. Lew Bodine will direct the Interfraternity Club Glee club in carols.

One of the most unique methods of raising money for Good Fellow baskets was adopted by employés of the Young Engineering company, at 2747 North Janssen avenue. Instead of taking up a collection employés were allowed to work five hours on a Saturday, the total pay of time and a half for overtime going to the Good Fellow fund.

Another outstanding Good Fellow drive was carried on by the Link and Pin Trafic Study club of the Pennsylvania railroad.

It is only a few days until Christmas morning. But they will be anything but joyful days for thousands of unfortunate families. They are the ones to whom Good Fellows are urged to take baskets of food, toys and candy. Their names are on file in the Good Fellow bureau at 1 South Dearborn street. The accompanying coupon or a phone call, Superior 0100, will enable persons with the Christmas spirit to reach them.

What to Buy? an Expert Gives Help to Men

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Filled with the Christmas spirit, the enthusiastic shoppers are rushing around at top speed. This is the last week, the period that brings the masculine half of the world plunging right down the center ailes.

Gift secretaries, every bit as efficient as those left behind in the office, are prepared to do the lion's share of rendering first aid to capitalists as well as office boys.

Buy hosiery in at least two pairs. This is a typically feminine request. It means if she snags one lone stocking, she can match another easily. She'll also beam with pleasure if, when you buy hosiery in such princely magnificence as a half a dozen or a dozen pairs at a time, you divide the loot. Buy some for street, afternoon, and for party wear.

The girls will also applaud your understanding if you send them marabou or angora bolero jackets. White and pastels are the best. Also popular are padded and quilted skating jackets in brilliant color.

If it's gloves you want to send, think of her needs. Swanky, sturdy pigskins for street and office wear, lovely washable doeskins in pastels and strong high colors for daytime and those long beauties in white or pale pastels for gala occasions.

In jewelry the most important items are the gay and giddy clips. Enamel and simulated jeweled stuff for daytime and street wool outfits. The glittering clips are for evening. As to bracelets, the musically jingly affairs are better and smarter than ever before.

For top luxury, a gift you want to send to impress, see the huge envelope evening purses. Expensive? Yes, but veritable art treasures that will and can be carried for years.

Sweaters are something else that make a feminine heart flutter. Choose the soft thin cashmeres, the peasant affairs embroidered with all kinds of flowers, hearts, and leaves. A matching set of sweater and cardigan always clicks. So do contrasting colored jackets of soft suede, magnificent evening jackets of gay bright wool embroidered in sequins.

New evening sweaters have just been unpacked, short sleeved with flowers embroidered in bright wools and then further enhanced with some bright braid or sequins.

But most important—shop now! Further delay is unthinkable!

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

The second annual bridge examination, just concluded, brought many surprises, some pleasant and others not so pleasant. Many of the questions about which I had qualms on the score of being too easy turned out to be veritable quagmires, judging from the answers I received. It now is my intention to review, day by day, those questions that tripped up any considerable portion of the examinees. I had better start with question 1.

Question 1. Both sides vulnerable. You are South, the dealer, and hold: ♠ Q 8 6 5 2 ♥ A K Q 6 3 ♦ K 4 ♣ 7.

What call do you make?

Sadly I must report that almost 70 per cent of the answers reaching me gave one heart as the correct opening bid. Obviously, the writers were irresistibly impressed by the top-trick superiority of the heart suit over the spade suit. I grant, without question, that if South were to make only one bid on this hand he should mention hearts and not spades, but consideration of the future course of bidding makes one spade the only correct opening bid. To mention a heart first on this hand is to obligate one's self either to suppress the spade suit entirely or to bid it in "reverse" fashion. This reversing is bound to mislead partner. He either will credit South with a four card spade suit, and will refuse to raise with three spades, or he will expect more general strength than South actually holds.

I thought that I had preached enough on this subject during the past few years to make sure that 98 per cent of all players would understand that, with two five card suits, the higher ranking should be bid almost regardless of the respective tops in each suit. Apparently, I was too complacent on this point.

TODAY'S HAND.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

East, despite his strength in three suits, was a bit optimistic to double. For all he could tell, South might have a terrific diamond suit and East might be able to take only two clubs and one heart, even on a club opening lead. Perhaps, however, he thought that declarer would misplay the hand. If so, he was wrong.

West opened his fourth best heart and East, realizing that his partner could have few, if any, entries, made the sound and shrewd play of putting in the heart jack. East correctly figured that the heart king was undoubtedly in declarer's hand. Hence, if he could drive that card out while retaining the ace and five, he would be able to put his partner back on lead. Putting up the heart ace on the first trick would permit declarer to hold up his king in safety. Declarer did not fall for East's persuasive play, however. That is, he did not accept his heart king on the first trick. The double marked East absolutely with the heart ace, hence there was no chance of declarer's losing the heart king by a hold-up. After this East could do no better than return the ace and a low heart. Now declarer took his king and ran off the diamond suit, discarding [in all] three clubs and one spade from dummy. East meanwhile let go one spade and one club. Declarer now cashed the spade king, then led a club to the jack. East took his ace and queen of clubs, but had to return a spade up to dummy's A-J tenace. The double had aided declarer considerably in his play of the hand.

Swedish Club Sings Season's First 'Messiah'

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The men and women of the Swedish Choral club and a large fraction of the Chicago Symphony orchestra virtually filled the great stage of Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon for the first 1938 downtown presentation of Handel's "Messiah." What little stage space was left went to the four assisting soloists and to Harry T. Carlson, the director. Perched on the mezzanine was Stanley Martin, organist.

A huge audience heard these musical forces deal with the prophecies relating to the coming of Christ, tell the story of his nativity, and outline the Christian hope of eventual justice and triumph. Just as millions of other listeners during the last two centuries have been touched by the qualities of the "Messiah's" text and music, so were the members of yesterday's audience stirred deeply by the great oratorio's majesty and serenity and confidence.

For there is hardly an insincere note in the work's whole generous length. Handel himself testified that the very heavens opened for him during his labors on the score, and we have no reason to deny the metaphorical truth, at least, of a statement of this sort from so forthright and unsentimental a man.

The performance was marked by the sturdiness, the precision, and the unaffected flow which are familiar characteristics of the musical style of Mr. Carlson and of the Swedish Choral club. In the club's best moments its tonal effects fitted perfectly the grandeur of the subjects with which the oratorio deals.

Thelma von Eisenhauer sang the soprano air, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," with immense dignity and a quite contagious hopefulness. Harriet Horton Brewer, contralto, redeemed by the richness of her voice quality the slight difficulties of synchronization which she occasionally encountered.

The tenor voice of Ralph Niehaus was entirely adequate to his assignments, although one may legitimately quarrel with him on the ground of the somewhat oversentimental style which he brought to such airs as "Behold and See." Mark Love performed his stormy assignments in good voice and in finely restrained style.

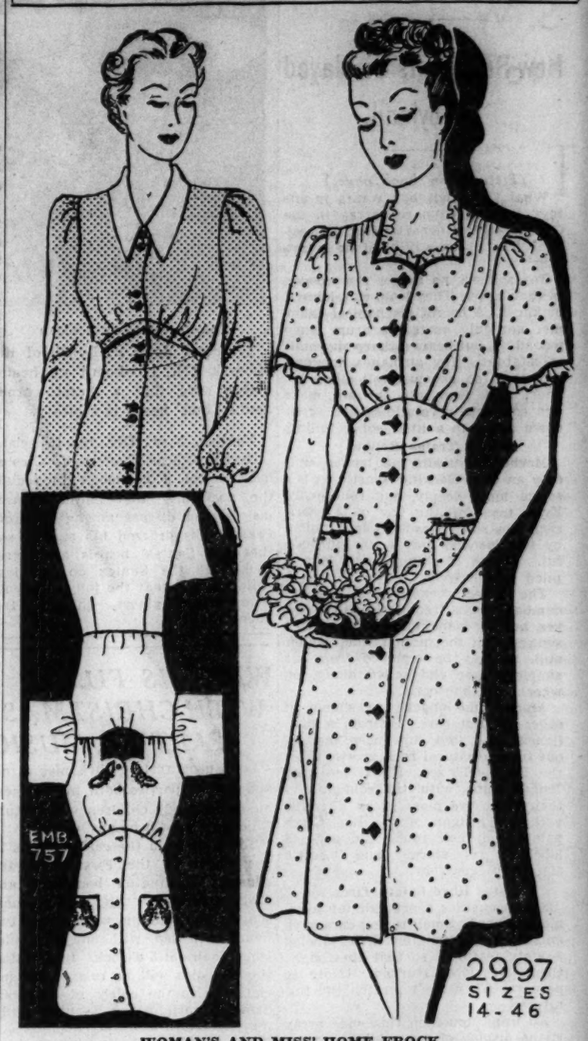
Mr. Carlson's conducting blended in satisfying fashion an insistence on accuracy and a tolerance of necessary flexibility.

At the Great Northern yesterday the Illinois Symphony orchestra under Izler Solomon's direction performed in quick succession two works of as violently contrasting a nature as imagination could match. One was a Peter Warlock transcription of four fantasias for strings by Henry Purcell, seventeenth century English composer. The other was "Sights and Sounds," subtitled "An Orchestral Entertainment," from the pen of Robert Russell Bennett, a living, highly successful orchestrator of musical comedy scores.

The first is tranquil, deliberate, austere of texture. The second depicts such things as railroad depots, electric signs, and skyscrapers by means of every eccentric device of which music is capable and every odd instrumental effect to which the modern orchestra lends itself. Neither work had ever before been heard in Chicago.

Robert Gross, violinist, played in Elgar concerto with an intenseness which in the case of a less gifted man would result in a forced and strident tone. There were meltingly beautiful passages of a songlike type in the second movement.

For Home or Street Wear



WOMAN'S AND MISS' HOME FROCK.

Although it is designed primarily as a home frock, this dress may well be made up in more expensive fabrics for wear on the street and to informal social occasions. There is nothing practical looking about it. What we mean is that it doesn't scream "work" in every line. There is grace in its styling, and it is particularly flattering to mature figures, the silhouettes for which it usually is so difficult to find becoming clothes in the stores. You can make this home or street frock for yourself at little cost.

The waistline is cut up in rather circular fashion, lending a long line to the skirt. The shirring at shoulders and waist gives softness to the bodice. The sleeves are puffed at the shoulders and may be either long or short. Buttons are used all the way down the front, from the neckline to the hem. The neckline, by the way, may be V with a collar, or heart-shaped with binding, ruffling, or both. Pockets, if you want them, may be placed on the skirt.

Style No. 2997 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material, with 2 yards of ruffling and 2 yards of binding for the short-sleeved, heart-shaped neckline version of the frock.

Philip C. White, S. W. Barrett to Take Brides

BY JUDITH CASS.

TWO engagement announcements of interest today have come from out of town but concern Chicago bachelors. Mr. and Mrs. Ermin Fawcett Plumb of Marilla Park, Streator, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Virginia, to Philip Cleaver White, son of Mrs. Harold Ferris White of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Laurance Penfield Robinson of Rockford have sent word of the engagement of their daughter, Virginia, to Saxton Williams Barrett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Barrett of Winnetka.

Miss Plumb is arriving in Chicago today for a brief visit with her fiancé and his mother, who is giving a tea for Miss Plumb on Wednesday. Miss Plumb is a granddaughter of the late Howard Newton Ogden, founder of the Illinois College of Law, now the law department of De Paul university, and a great-granddaughter of Col. Ralph Plumb, founder of Streator. She attended Ferry Hall and the University High school, and now is a senior at Wellesley.

Mr. White, a fourth generation Chicagoan, attended the Berkshire school and was graduated from the University of Chicago in 1935 with Phi Beta Kappa honors. He received his Ph. D. from the university last June.

White-Plumb Wedding Set for Late Summer.

Miss Plumb plans to finish her work at Wellesley. She and Mr. White will be married in the late summer.

The engagement of Miss Robinson to Mr. Barrett was announced at a luncheon on Saturday at the Robinson home, given for Mrs. Laurance Robinson Jr., who was Rose Trumbull of Highland Park until her marriage to the Robinsons' son in October.

Miss Robinson attended Rockford college. Mr. Barrett attended Culver Military academy and the Westminster school. He is engaged in business in Chicago and will bring his bride here to make their home after their wedding in the spring.

Many Parties to Precede Fleming-Fall Wedding.

Mrs. Marshall Fleming and David Richardson Fall, who are to be married next Monday, are not telling where they will go on their wedding trip, but they will be at home in Asheville, N. C., after Jan. 15. Mr. Fall, who is headmaster of the Asheville School for Boys, arrived here yesterday. The rest of the week is filled with parties for him and his fiancée.

Mrs. Fleming's brother, Benjamin H. Marshall Jr., and their brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Simmons, are giving a dinner at the Tavern tomorrow night. Mr. Fall's mother, Mrs. J. Horton Fall Jr. of Evanston, is giving a tea on Wednesday afternoon for Mrs. Fleming, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Horton Fall III. are giving a dinner that night.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Beuttas will give a dinner party Thursday night, and the bride's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Brashears, are giving a family party Friday night. Christmas eve and Christmas day will be spent with the families, of course.

The wedding is to take place in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Simmons at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The Rev. Samuel Harkness, pastor of the Winnetka Congregational church, will read the service. Only the two families, including the bride's young daughter, Betty, will be present. Mr. Marshall Sr. will give his daughter in marriage. She will be unattended. The bridegroom's father will be his best man.

Near North Side Route of Carolers Announced.

If you want the Great Lakes Dredge and Philharmonic Friends of Music to sing carols in front of your house—if you live on their line of march—just put a candle into your window Friday evening. Do not fear that cold or thirst will drive the carolers indoors, however, for they already have accepted all the invitations for refreshments that they possibly can accept.

The twenty-four singers will start at the Robert Pyzels', 70 Scott street, at 5 o'clock. Their first stop will be in the little park at the intersection of Astor and Goethe streets. North on Astor street to North avenue will go the carolers, stopping at the Clay Judsons', 1541 Astor. West on North avenue to State parkway, where they will turn south, stopping in at Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne's, at Burton place. On south to Scott, where they Best Liked Customers.

Long time employés of the world's largest store, saleswomen and department heads, were discussing the regular customers, past and present. They were unanimous in choosing as the best liked customer of an earlier day the late Mrs. L. B. Doud, mother of Mrs. Henry A. Rumsey. The late Mrs. Edward F. Swift was a favorite customer of later years. Today, Mrs. A. Watson Armour is one of the best liked persons who comes in to shop — with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. A. Watson Armour III., the former Jean Schweppe, as runnerup.

Widows—New Genus.

You've heard of golf widows, grass widows, polo widows. The latest—subway widows. Their husbands are the utility engineers working out the new plans for "rebraiding" the telegraph cables, gas pipe, water pipe, and sewer pipe in the loop in preparation for the new subway.

Girl Anthropologist.

Adventures await a young woman recently arrived home for a holiday visit after a year at Oxford university, who will sail next year for Sumatra to live with a Malay tribe for a year. She is Ruth Pardee, brilliant young student of social anthropology, who went from the University of Chicago to Somerville college at Oxford to continue her studies. Miss Pardee was sponsored at Somerville, a college of high scholastic requirements, by Prof. Radcliffe-Brown, noted professor of social anthropology at Oxford, recently of the University of Chicago staf. She is the daughter of Harvey Pardee, Highland Park inventor. Her stay with the Minanghbua tribe in Malay, whose language she is learning, will be field work in her anthropological studies.

Cigaret Cards.

"Too Bad You Didn't Keep the Tobacco Cards of Your Boyhood," read a headline in a recent issue of the Boston Herald: "Novel Americana Suddenly Becomes Valuable After a Generation or Two Forgot It."

But some Chicagoans did keep theirs, among them Elmo Scott Watson, editor, Medill School of Journalism lecturer, and Mathew B. Brady authority. If anybody wants to swap an Anna Held or a Fritzi Scheff for a Marie Doro or an Alice Dovey or a Mabel Cameron, see Mr. Watson. Or a Bay State girl for a Palmetto girl in the State Girl series.

Ballet Opens Tonight; Three New Numbers

Once again the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, under the direction of Leonide Massine, comes to Chicago and its gala first performance this evening in the Auditorium theater will be a benefit for the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society.

It has been said that artists are keyed to a higher pitch when giving a performance that is new to their audience. If this is true, this evening's performance should be memorable, for three ballets new to Chicago are to be presented. They are "La Gaité Parisienne" with choreography by Massine, and costumes by Count Etienne de Beaumont; Beethoven's "Seventh Symphony," and "Bogatyri."

Massine also is the choreographer for "Seventh Symphony" and "Bogatyri," although he does not dance in the Beethoven number. Berard is responsible for the costumes and scenery of the Beethoven ballet, and Goncharova designed the costumes and scenery for the other one, which is danced to a symphony of Borodin's. New York audiences have been enthusiastic about the costumes, scenery, music, and arrangements of these three ballets.

Mrs. John Alden Carpenter is the able chairman for the benefit. Her co-chairman is Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, whose husband is president of the society. Among those working on the committee have been Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. Howard W. Fenton, Mrs. Henry Faurot Jr., Mrs. A. Watson Armour, Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, and several others. Ten young women will sell flowers at the Auditorium under the direction of Miss Kay Goodman. They include Debutantes Mary Ryerson, Mary Hale Barbara Mechem, Betty Mead, Nancy Orr, Sally Perry, Margaret Hutchins, Alice Wyeth, and Jane Zimmerman.

As if the performance of the ballet were not enough gayety for one evening, the ballet benefit committee of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society has planned a party in the Casino room of the Congress hotel following the performance, to meet Mr. and Mrs. Leonide Massine and the members of the ballet. Mrs. Waldo Logan is chairman of the supper party.

Among those who have made reservations for the supper are Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. McCormick, Mrs. James M. Hopkins, Mrs. Louis C. Sudler, Mrs. Goodspeed, Mrs. Carpenter, Mrs. Howell B. Ermi. ger Jr., Adlai Stevenson, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Augustus W. Eddy, Mrs. Richard Hackett, Deering McCormick, and Mrs. Otis Chatfield-Taylor. Massine has promised to do a comedy stunt and members of the ballet will entertain.

My Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

KIND: Old fashioned romantic melodrama, "dated" as the dickens!

ACTING: Mighty good. Never have I seen good players try harder to put a poor play across.

DIRECTION: Hampered by the script.

DIALOG: Banal.

SETS, COSTUMES, SCENERY, PHOTOGRAPHY, SOUND, and the rest of the works: Fine.

STORY: A man of old, old, old, conservative family weds a café entertainer against his younger brother's warning and takes her to the old homestead to live. . . . Here abide Brother David, his pretty wife, Judy, and a maiden sister, Hannah. . . . Hannah treats the new sister-in-law venomously. . . . Brother's wife adores her. . . . Brother falls in love with her—and she with him. . . . BUT—Sister goes a step too far in, literally, burning a house down about the hated newcomer's head. . . . Then everybody becomes dead noble and the ending is just too gay for anything.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: Well, I do think audiences will laugh where they're supposed to cry. I did.

See you tomorrow.

5 Million Dollar 12 Story Library Is Planned by U. of C.

The University of Chicago is looking for $1,000,000 to build a natural science library, it was disclosed yesterday by M. L. Raney, director of university libraries.

The problem of housing the university's books is acute, said Raney in discussing plans for a library system which also include a $5,000,000, twelve story central library. The Harper library was built in 1912, he said, and overflowed five years later. Now the university has 1,250,000 volumes, the fourth largest university collection in the country, and they are scattered among twenty-seven departmental buildings.

The pressing problem is the biological and physiological section, whose temporary quarters will be exhausted within a year, said Raney. As soon as the money can be raised, the building will be constructed on a site in the vicinity of 58th street and Ellis avenue. The skyscraper library would follow later, when funds were made available, he said.

Her Second Choice

By Elizabeth York Miller

[Copyright, 1938, By Elizabeth York Miller.]

SYNOPSIS.

Nora Stacy receives a letter from India from her fiancé, irresponsible Jim Murdock, breaking their engagement. Heartbroken Nora writes Jim she'll marry the next man who asks her. Jim's family live next door to the modest English cottage where Nora lives with her aunt, Mrs. Dorothy Callender. When Bob Matherson of Fairways, rich young bachelor and recent neighbor, proposes to Nora she accepts. Three days before the wedding Jim returns and demands that Nora run away with him. Nora feels morally pledged to Bob, who has settled an income on her aunt. For a wedding present Jim gives Nora her love letters to him—except the one in which she vowed to marry the next man who asks her. Mrs. Pearl Almy, a former attachment of Bob's, who rents a cottage on his estate, gets the letter and sends it to Bob, hoping he'll call off the wedding, but Bob goes through with it. Their wedding night Bob has a showdown with Nora. He tells her he married her for convenience, too. They agree their marriage will be in name only. Bob and his sister's husband, David Longton, are in the aircraft armament business for the government. Cissy Longton tells Nora that Mrs. Almy, who used to work in their office, is suspected of giving away the firm's secrets to a rival. Nora dismisses the housekeeper when she finds her secretly conspiring with Mrs. Almy.

INSTALMENT XIX.

FACING RUIN.

Nora regarded the huge bunch of keys which the butler had laid on the table with perplexity. Some of them bore tags, but a great number were anonymous.

Suddenly she had an inspiration.

"Beals, how long have you been with Mr. Matherson?"

"It will be nine years at Easter, madam."

"You looked after his flat in London, didn't you?"

"Yes, madam—me and Mrs. Ransom and Gertrude Gatty—Gatty was house-parlor maid there, too."

"And Mrs. Cooper?"

"She was engaged when Mr. Matherson took Fairways, although Mrs Ransom and I felt we could have managed nicely without a housekeeper. Er—h'm—you see, Mrs. Almy had the doing up of Fairways and she felt that with the bigger establishment we needed a larger staff."

"I see, then it was Mrs. Almy who engaged Mrs. Cooper?"

"That is so, madam."

Nora felt on much safer ground now.

"Well, that's all for the moment, Beals."

Aunt Dorothy came over and afterward they played contract.

While they were having tea the telephone rang and Nora waited anxiously while Beals answered it. Only some one ringing from the office to say that Mr. Matherson and Mr. Longton were on their way back and bringing Mrs. Rawlings' husband with them.

She had orders to give, now that there was no longer a Mrs. Cooper, and excused herself. After a short consultation with Beals she ran up to change her dress before the men arrived.

She felt excited, and if the truth be told, just a little frightened as to how Bob would take her summary dismissal of the housekeeper.

She reached for what she considered her most becoming garments, a gold ciré satin with a brocaded lamé coat, and sat down at the dressing table to do something very special to her face.

"Why should I be afraid of him?" she told herself indignantly. "If he likes, he can choose between me and Mrs. Cooper. I fired her and if he doesn't like it he can fire me."

But only her subconscious self knew that she was trying to look a little more beautiful than perhaps nature had intended in order to get on the good side of Bob.

She was so intent at the dressing table that she did not hear the door open nor footsteps behind her until she saw his face in the mirror above her head.

It looked like the face of a ghost—gray-white, with a stretched, forced smile that etched black lines about his eyes and mouth.

Nora whirled around looking as startled as she felt.

"Bob—!"

"I'm sorry. I forgot to knock."

"But—are you ill?"

"No, I don't think so. I just felt I wanted to—to see you."

"Sit down," she said, indicating a cosy little armchair by the fire.

"You are very hospitable, Nora. Could you stretch it a little? I mean—could we have a couple of drinks up here just to fortify ourselves?"

With her finger on the bell she asked:

"What has happened, Bob?"

"I am not quite sure," he said. "Probably I'm ruined, but that is a small matter. On top of it, I think I stand a very good chance of being arrested on the charge of double-crossing my country."

Nora stood with her finger on the bell. She still had it there when the parlor maid appeared.

"What are you going to have, Nora?"

Bob's voice recalled her to her senses.

"Er—a glass of sherry, please."

"Sherry for Mrs. Matherson, and whisky for me, Gatty. We're going to have it up here."

Nora went close to him and put her hand on his shoulder.

"Are you going to tell me about it?" she asked. "Was it because of the safe that was broken into last night?"

He gave a start.

"Good lord, who told you that?"

"Mrs. Almy. She said you rang her up."

"The devil she did! When was this?"

"About 9 o'clock—no, it would be later, nearer half past. You asked her to lunch with you, didn't you?"

"So she told you that, too."

He gave Nora a sharp glance, and then relapsed into moodiness.

"Bob, if I am to help you, won't you be frank with me and tell me what it's all about?"

"I'm not asking you to help me. There isn't anything you can do, anyway. . . . Thank God, here come those drinks!"

Gatty was entering with a tray and Nora made a place on a table for her to set it down.

"Is there anything else, sir?" she asked.

"No—yes. Wait a minute. Here's a list I made in the car coming down. Ring up these people, Gatty, and say Mrs. Matherson and I would be pleased if they'd come around informally after dinner for a little dance. You'd better tell Mrs. Cooper we'll be wanting a snack of hot supper around midnight."

"Mrs. Cooper . . .?"

"It's all right, Gatty," Nora put in hastily. "I haven't had time to explain to Mr. Matherson yet. Just tell Beals and Mrs. Ransom, and let them know how many to expect after you have done the telephoning."

"Bob, do you really want a party tonight?" Nora said after Gatty had left the room.

"We've got the Rawlings on our hands, haven't we? And your aunt and David and Cissy. If we don't do something the whole boiling of 'em will begin to tumble. I put everybody in the neighborhood I could think of on that list—about twenty, I imagine."

Nora clenched her lips and then said quickly: "But doesn't David know the trouble you are in—isn't it his trouble, too?"

Bob was mixing himself a stiff drink. "This happens to be woman trouble," he said. "Dave steers clear of that sort of thing . . . What's this about Mrs. Cooper?"

Woman trouble. A pang went over her. Was it Pearl Almy again, or somebody else for a change? And he had told her he had no past!

"Didn't you hear me?"

"O . . . Mrs. Cooper. I dismissed her this morning. You'll have to pay her a month's wages and board money, I'm afraid."

Bob finished his drink, and then he said: "What did you sack her for?"

"More reasons than one, but chiefly because I don't like her."

It seemed to her that Bob's eyes were playing like lightning all over her. Those sharp black lines were smoothing out of his face now, and his color was better, but he still looked as though he was strung on wires.

"You've been keeping something back from me," he said.

"That goes for you, too," Nora said angrily. "Why should it all be on my side? And anyway, I was brought up not to tell tales."

"Very public school," Bob said, with the ghost of a sneer.

Nora didn't know why she did it, but the fact was she did do it. Smack . . . ! The flat of her palm swiped clean across his cheek, and the glass he was holding leaped with surprise and did a somersault on the carpet.

Career Wife Must Take Mind Off Job on Leaving Office

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"If the career woman would make a real go of her marriage, she must doff her office personality when she dons her hat and coat at the end of her day, no matter how important she is in her business or professional life."

Above is the advice of one who should know, being a careerist herself and married to a successful physician. She is Helen Menken, one of the first ladies of drama.

"Don't let your work occupy the uppermost part of your thoughts," Miss Menken warns. "Leave your business worries at the office and concentrate on being the wife at home, and the good companion. If your man wants to spend a quiet evening at home, let that appear what you, too, want to do. If he has to entertain out of towners of valuable business contact, be the gracious hostess. If he feels like stepping out, don't complain about your busy day and about how tired you are."

Today's column is being written for the benefit of cooks and hostesses who haven't yet decided what to serve as the first course at the Christmas dinner. Some of us aren't even sure until a day or so before Christmas whether fruit cocktail, soup, or fish will start out the feast. This list of Christmas appetizer courses will, I hope, be helpful to late menu makers.

CHRISTMAS APPETIZER COURSES.

JUICE COCKTAILS: Apple juice; cranberry cocktail, plain or spiced; cranberry and orange cocktail; pomegranate and lemon cocktail; tomato juice, plain or spiced; chilled canned vegetable juice; canned fruit nectar; grape juice; grape juice and orange or pineapple juice; cider. Any of these may be frozen to a mush and served as a frappé.

FRUIT COCKTAILS: Minted fruit cup [any kind of mixed fruits with crushed peppermint]; banana, pineapple and cherry cup; avocado, orange, grapefruit and apple; avocado and melon balls in orange juice; avocado, grapefruit and strawberries; any fruit mixture sprinkled with pomegranate seeds; avocado, persimmon, and fresh pineapple. Mint and watercress garnishes always are attractive. Pomegranate juice or cranberry juice may be poured over a fruit cocktail for attractive color. Of course, the juice should be sweetened. Almost any wine may be poured over a fruit mixture for cocktails.

SALADS: Crisp raw vegetables, such as shredded cabbage, thin strips of carrot, green pepper; antipasto [Italian style plate of assorted raw and cooked vegetable pieces which have been marinated in French dressing]: chopped greens with Roquefort French dressing, garnished with thin slices of tomato; tomato and cucumber salad with sharp French dressing; tomato [small] stuffed with slaw and garnished with strips of pimiento and green pepper; tomato aspic.

CANAPES: Hollywreath type [ring of bread spread with cream cheese and sprinkled with finely minced parsley or watercress, dots of pimiento may make the berries]; star shape or tree shape canapes with any tart spread, such as anchovies, caviar, cream cheese and chives; slices of apple spread with cheese and decorated; slices of tomato treated likewise, with sardine paste or whole sardines over it. Usually a beverage such as fruit juice or tomato juice accompanies such canape, but isn't at all necessary.

ICES: Cranberry; cranberry and orange; cranberry, orange, and pineapple; lemon; lemon and orange; orange; pomegranate; tomato, plain or spiced; grape and lemon.

FISH COCKTAILS: Oysters or clams on the halfshell; broiled oysters with cocktail sauce; chilled shrimp, or shrimp and crabmeat cocktail; lobster, crabmeat, shrimp, and tunafish cocktail. Sharp sauces should be served with all of these.

SOUPS: Oyster, shrimp, or crabmeat bisque; cream of tomato, parsley or watercress garnish; cream of celery; consomme; chicken broth.

MISCELLANEOUS: Baskets or cups for fruit cocktails may be made from grapefruit, oranges, or apples. They shouldn't be too large. It is best to cut the fruit in halves through the middle if it is sizable. Mixed fruit slices or whole pieces, may be arranged within rings cut through the center of avocados. Tomato halves or cups may be used for fruit mixtures, too. Grapefruit or orange halves may be sprinkled with sugar, basted with wine, broiled, and served hot.

Two Smith College Clubs to Have Joint Luncheon.

The Chicago and Evanston-North Shore Smith college clubs are combining to give their annual Christmas luncheon on Dec. 29 at 12 o'clock at the Woman's Athletic club. Hans Kohn, professor of history at Smith, will speak on "Romanticism and Realism in Foreign Policy," and members of the faculty will be especial guests.

Mrs. Fred Heuchling, president of the Chicago club, and Mrs. John R. Montgomery Jr., president of the north shore group, and many alumnæ as well as students are planning to attend the luncheon. Prof. Kohn, who was born in Prague and received his doctor's degree at the University of Prague, has spoken in Chicago before the Council of Foreign Relations. He came to the United States in 1931 under the auspices of the Institute of International Education and was made a member of the Smith staf in 1934.

Alumnæ of Mount Holyoke and undergraduates will meet at a luncheon the Chicago Mount Holyoke club is giving Dec. 8 at the College club. Miss Flora Ludington, librarian, and Miss Elizabeth Kimball, director of the two unit plan of the college, will be especial guests at the luncheon.

Miss Anne Chenoweth and Miss Jeane Fisher, who are seniors at the college, are arranging an undergraduate program for the luncheon. Mrs. Maurice Elgutter is president of the club. Mount Holyoke students will arrive at home for the holidays tomorrow.

Girls' Club Will Give 75 Dolls to Needy Children

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

We could go absolutely loopy over the sachets, the friction lotions, bath oils, colognes, and the pomander ball made by a woman whose enthusiasm for translating beautiful scents grew out of her love for her own garden and the flowers thereof. And since we're so mad about them, we have an idea that nine out of ten women would be too. The only word to describe them—and it's a word we dislike tossing about—is "exquisite."

The maker has sachet flannels that are breath-taking in the beauty of their fragrance. Gardenia, honeysuckle, white lilac—all true as true and sufficiently lasting to spread their fragrance for months—maybe even years.

She also has sachet sets that are like none you've ever seen before. All kinds of little pillows and pads, and beautful silk cases into which lingerie, hose, and handkerchiefs may be tucked. There are scented pads for hangers, too, that would make a really exciting and unusual gift.

Her "friction lotion" is one of the most exciting of all scented preparations on the market. This, to be used after the bath, is exhilarating to the skin and perfumes it exquisitely. The gardenia is the answer to the prayer of all gardenia lovers.

The bat hoils are treasures, too. These come in a whole flock of beautiful fragrances, including some that are pure florals, others that are among the most interesting of all perfume blends.

Maybe you'd like a box of bath mitts. We should, any time. These, made of toweling, are filled with pure, bland soap and scent. They come in different colors and several fragrances.

Her toilet waters are wonderful. These can be found in sets, with dusting powder or can be bought separately in a "glamor bottle" of beautifully cut crystal, with a huge stopper. It's one of the most artistic bottles we have ever seen—and the toilet water itself, in many fragrances, is enchanting.

Daily Attention Is the Major Keynote of a Beauty Program

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Don't be lazy about your daily beauty program. In no other department of life would you expect to develop with haphazard application of the rules for success. You would not get anywhere did you practice your music, say, once or twice a week; practice your typing and stenography once or twice a week. You'd run a fairly slipshod household did you not brush up the place daily.

When you are pursuing beauty, it's the daily application of your established program that counts, even though it be ten minutes a day or fifteen you originally set aside for your morning and night beauty adventure.

The beautiful young British star, Margaret Lockwood, echoes the don't be lazy advice. "Don't be lazy," says the lovely star, "if you long to have and maintain the most important of all requisites—a fresh, clear complexion." She is herself a shining example of the generally accepted viewpoint that the English beauty is notable for fine coloring and texture of skin. An "alive" complexion is a suitable word Miss Lockwood applies to skin beauty. And a good word, indeed, to ponder on. How many, many skins you see whose best friend, the owner herself, could never flatter them with the "alive" compliment.

Miss Lockwood's way of keeping her skin alive and sparkling: Before hopping into her evening tub, just before retiring, she piles her hair high on her head, completely covering it with a towel. Then she applies a lavish quantity of cold cream over the entire face. This involves a good steaming of the face with a chance for the cream to get in deeply on its pore-cleasing job. After emerging from the tub, she removes the cream thoroughly with tissues and either splashes her face with cold water or gives it an ice rub. Witch-hazel, kept in the ice box when not in use, is a standby of the star. After the ice rub she pats her face with it just for that extra tingle and aliveness coveted. Miss Lockwood finds this face treatment eliminates chapping, roughness, and other winter complexion hazards.

Rough, red hands soon respond to care. Learn from Antoinette Donnelly, Tribune beauty editor, how to give hands proper attention. Get her booklet, "Handmade Hand Beauty." On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 5 cents. By postpaid mail, 7 cents.

The Housewife

If you're about to start on your yearly task of sending out Christmas cards you'll be glad to know of a neat, handy little contrivance that moistens all the stamps and envelopes for you. It looks a little like a large, fat fountain pen. You fill it with water, and the pen part is made of a bit of sponge, so that when you press down on it you dampen it and presto, it's ready to use.

In a jiffy you can moisten envelope flaps, stamps and stickers with this device. We're all for it. And it costs only a few cents.

Eagle Makes Its Escape While Being Photographed

Galesburg, Ill., Dec. 18.—[Special.]—Jarvis Moak, Knox county trapper, does not have to worry any longer about what he is going to do with a golden eagle which he captured in a fox trap. While the bird was being photographed today by Harold M. Holland, local ornithologist, it cut through the heavy double cord with which it was tethered and flew away.

Numerous Grownup Advisers on Discipline Make Woe for Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"Why," I asked an aunt of mine, "does Jim [my cousin] feel such antagonism toward Uncle George?"

"It's like this," answered my aunt: "When I was young and first married I was a little idiot. You know, of course, how big the family was, and as many young couples did then, we lived at home. Many a time I spanked that first dear little son of mine because his Uncle George told me something he'd done and said that what he needed was a spanking."

A large family of grownups and one child is a difficult combination. They are apt either to spoil him with overindulgence or criticize him constantly. A child constantly knocks the shins of his elders—bumps against conventions and civilization.

When he does this one adult will notice what another doesn't and each will correct him or call him down, even "tell on him" to get his mother or father to correct him. These things are most insidious and are among the reasons why it is good for some children occasionally to spend part of their time away from home in more impersonal surroundings, such as play groups or camps.

WILSON DENIES HE SOUGHT TO SUCCEED ZUPPKE

GRANGE OFFER IS EXPLAINED BY DIRECTOR

Had No Thought of Firing Coach.

BY STEWART OWEN.

Wendell S. [Weenie] Wilson, athletic director of the University of Illinois, last night denied that he had contemplated succeeding Robert C. Zuppke as head football coach at Illinois.

Wendell Wilson.

It was the first public statement Wilson has made since the university's board of trustees on Nov. 29 rejected a plan to retire Zuppke on a salary of $6,000 a year. Wilson, as head of the department of athletics, presented the retirement agreement, which Zuppke had signed, to the trustees at that time.

"I never entertained the idea of being head football coach," Wilson told THE TRIBUNE by telephone from his home in Champaign. "That was suggested at one time by one of the members of the board of directors of the athletic association, but I absolutely am not interested in that at all. I am interested only in the athletic directorship and that is a full time job."

Grange Turns Down Offer.

Reports have persisted since the trustees refused to accept Zuppke's resignation that Wilson had planned to make himself head football coach and that he had offered Red Grange, Illinois' greatest football hero, a position as assistant coach, to serve two days a week. Wilson was a team mate of Grange on the Illini eleven in 1925, Grange's senior year.

"I did talk to Red and tried to hire him as assistant coach," Wilson said. "He couldn't afford to come to Illinois for the salary we offered him. His income now is twice that of our head football coach and he couldn't give up the time from his job in Chicago to come here. That was his only reason for not accepting.

"The position was offered him not as assistant to me, but as assistant to the head coach at Illinois—Zuppke or whoever else it might be.

"He was very friendly about it and although the impression has been gained that he bawled me out for offering him the job, that is not true."

No Thought of Firing Zuppke.

Wilson was referring to Grange's remarks at the banquet of the Illini club of Chicago on Dec. 1 when he presented a watch to Zuppke in recognition of Zuppke's 26 years of service as Illinois' coach. Grange at that time said he had been offered many coaching jobs, "some of them just as good as his coaching job at Illinois," and that he would never accept one. This was interpreted as a rebuke to Wilson.

"I am not free to discuss all the phases of the affair," Wilson said, "but I want it to be understood that I did not think of taking the football coach's position and that the athletic board never thought of firing Zuppke. That topic was never discussed at any time. I should like to discuss the whole thing and make my position clear, but right now there are several reasons why I cannot talk further."

When the plan to remove Zuppke was presented to the board of trustees it was explained as a retirement plan, under which Zuppke would give up active coaching but would serve in an advisory capacity until he reached the pension age of 65 years. Zuppke had signed the agreement but said that he did so under pressure, believing that he would be released without compensation if he refused.

Zuppke Likes Idea.

Even during the heat of his resentment at the athletic board's action Zuppke insisted that Wilson's plan for retirement of coaches from active work before the pension age of other faculty members was a fine thing, and would lead to greater security of jobs for men engaged in collegiate athletic work. He contended, however, that the athletic board had not consulted him in its deliberations and that Wilson had been forced into rushing the retirement plan through by other members, in order to get him out of his position, and make way for a "more modern coach."

M'SPADEN'S 275 WINS MIAMI GOLF AND $2,500 CASH

Picard Finishes Second with 276 Card.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 18.—(AP)—Harold [Jug] McSpaden of Winchester, Mass., won the $10,000 Miami open golf tournament today with a seventy-two hole score of 275, five under par, one stroke in front of Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa.

Picard took a two under par 68 for a total of 276. McSpaden, who slipped to a one over par 36 on the front nine, came back in 33 for a 69.

Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., with a 71 today, finished third at 279. Denny Shute of Coral Gables, Fla., and Ben Hogan of White Plains, N. Y., tied for fourth place at 280. Shute scored a 68 to a 70 for Hogan.

Jug Collects $2,500.

McSpaden's victory brought him $2,500, Picard collecting $1,250 and Revolta $1,000.

Frank Walsh, Bretton Woods, N. H., finishing with a 67 after his great 66 yesterday, earned sixth place money at 281, while Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and Jimmy Thomson of Shawnee, Pa., shared seventh place with 282s. Thomson shot a 68 today and Snead also broke par with a 69.

Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N. Y., with a final 69, finished ninth at 283. Ralph Guldahl, national open champion, slipped to a 72 and wound up in a tenth place tie with E. J. [Dutch] Harrison of Chicago at 284. Harrison had a last round 69.

Harbert Tops Amateurs.

Sam Byrd of Philadelphia blasted himself out of the rear ranks with a closing 66 to finish even with Bobby Cruickshank of Delray Beach, Fla., and Johnny Bulla of Chicago at 285. Young Bulla, who began the day only four strokes behind McSpaden, had a 75.

The day's greatest surprise, however, came in the amateur ranks when Chick Harbert of Battle Creek, Mich., scored a 66, equaling the low tournament score, to take honors in his division with a 296 total.

Shute and Hogan won $675 each; Walsh collected $500; Thomson and Snead earned $350 each; $200 went to Wood; $125 each to Guldahl and Harrison, and $100 each to Byrd, Cruickshank, and Bulla.

John Geertsen of Salt Lake City, Utah, who scored a 66 the opening day, won $80 as he finished with a 286.

De Paul Meets Iowa; Loyola Plays North Dakota Quintet

Four of the high scoring college players of the nation will go into action tonight in the 132d Infantry armory, 2653 West Madison street, in the first of a series of double-header basketball games. Loyola will oppose North Dakota in the first game and De Paul will play the University of Iowa five in the second. The Loyola-North Dakota game will start at 8 p. m.

Wibs Kautz.

The high scorers are Wibs Kautz, Loyola guard; Capt. Bob Neu of De Paul; Ben Stephens, Iowa captain, and Ernie Christianson, North Dakota forward.

Kautz, who has scored forty-nine points in two games, set an all-time Loyola high last season with 289 points, erasing a mark set by Charlie Murphy in 1930. Neu holds the De Paul record of 250 points, scored in the 1937-'38 season.

Stephens a Record Holder, Too.

Stephens, highly regarded Hawkeye performer, also holds the season conference mark for Iowa. He made 136 points against Big Ten opposition last season. Christianson was high scorer in the North Dakota intercollegiate conference.

Mike Novak, Loyola's 6 foot 9 inch center, also is deserving of the fans' attention. Novak, besides being a capable man on attack, is regarded as a fine defensive player. His tremendous height allows him to bat enemy shots away from the basket.

Four Chicago boys will play for Iowa. Erwin Prasse, recently elected captain of the Iowa football team, and Fred Hohenhorst, reserve center, played with Schurz High school, as did Dick Evans, a forward. Angelo Anapol, a sophomore guard, is widely known on Chicago's west side as a softball pitcher.

Mayor Kelly to Attend.

Mayor Kelly, who has designated Loyola and De Paul as Chicago's host teams, will participate in tonight's ceremonies, tossing up the first ball. Alumni groups of the four contending schools and students of De Paul and Loyola have reserved cheering sections.

While Iowa is performing against De Paul, four other Big Ten teams also will be continuing the preseason campaign that is supposed to prepare them for the strenuous conference season just ahead. Wisconsin, routed by Marquette, 46 to 27, in Milwaukee Saturday night, will attempt to come back against Butler in Indianapolis. Butler won from Iowa, 31 to 29, Saturday.

N. U. Plays Temple.

Northwestern continues its eastern activity in Philadelphia, playing Temple. The Wildcats lost to St. John's university, 49 to 41, Saturday night in their first game in Madison Square Garden in New York. A crowd of 16,386 saw the game, which was part of a double-header.

Purdue, undefeated thus far, plays Connecticut State in Lafayette. The easterners, coached by Don White, former Purdue star, lost to Indiana, 71 to 38, Saturday night. Tonight's game should serve Purdue well in its training for the Southern California game in Lafayette Thursday.

The University of Chicago quintet, defeated only by Marquette thus far, plays Oberlin in the Midway fieldhouse.

Games Tonight

Wisconsin at Butler.
Northwestern at Temple.
Connecticut State at Purdue.
Iowa vs. De Paul, 132d armory.
North Dakota vs. Loyola, 132d armory.

St. George Five Wins; St. Mel Also Advances

St. George, St. Mel, Mount Carmel, and St. Michael yesterday survived the quarter-final round in the fifth St. George Catholic High school basketball tournament in Evanston. They will play semi-final contests tonight and the championship and third place games will be played tomorrow.

St. George defeated St. Patrick, 32 to 22; St. Mel won from De Paul academy, 26 to 24; Mount Carmel, the defending champion, eliminated Loyola academy, 49 to 21, in a game in which five tournament records were established, and St. Michael outscored St. Rita, 39 to 21.

St. George Takes Early Lead

St. George in the second of the two evening games took an early lead over St. Patrick and held it throughout. St. Patrick had numerous shots but its aim was off. The score was 17 to 7 at the half.

St. Mel wiped out a short De Paul lead in the final period to achieve its victory. The score was tied at 15 apiece at the half and De Paul led, 21 to 18, as the third quarter ended.

Segerson and Thurnblad shot a field goal each to shove St. Mel into the lead, 22 to 21, but Grzonka made a free throw to tie the score. Shortly after this Madden sank a short shot and Crowley made good on a free throw to give St. Mel an advantage it held until the end.

Thurnblad's free throw concluded the scoring for St. Mel and Croke's basket was the final effort for De Paul.

Dougherty Paces St. Michael.

St. Michael led St. Rita from the start. The score was 9 to 1 at the quarter, 18 to 7 at the half, and 29 to 12 going into the final period. Dougherty, with five field goals and six free throws, was high scorer for St. Michael.

The Mount Carmel score was the largest of the tournament; the total fouls, forty-three, of which twenty-three were committed by Mount Carmel, was another high; the fifteen free throws by Loyola still another record; Loyola's three field goals the fewest made by any team in play thus far, and Butler's seventeen points the best individual scoring performance.

Mount Carmel clinched victory in the third quarter by scoring twenty-one points and entering the last quarter with a 37 to 12 advantage.

JOE SHEEKETSKI NAMED COACH AT HOLY CROSS

Rejects Job as Anderson's Assistant at Iowa.

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 18.—(AP)—Joe Sheeketski, back field coach at Holy Cross the last six seasons, tonight was named head football coach. He succeeds Dr. Eddie Anderson, who resigned three weeks ago to accept a position at the University of Iowa.

Joe Sheeketski.

It previously had been reported that Sheeketski, a former Notre Dame player, would accompany Dr. Anderson to Iowa.

The appointment was announced by Director of Athletics Tom McCabe from Sheeketski's home in Detroit. Financial terms of the three year contract were not revealed.

McCabe said that Sheeketski, who is only 29 years old and one of the youngest head coaches at any major college, will select his own assistants.

Born in Pennsylvania.

Sheeketski came to Holy Cross with Dr. Anderson in 1933 straight from Notre Dame, where he had been a right half back for three seasons. He proved himself an outstanding back field instructor and his popularity with the players was such that, when college officials recently polled the letter men concerning their choice for a new coach, he was a unanimous selection.

Sheeketski is a native of Mount Carmel, Pa. His only coaching experience has been at Holy Cross, where he has assisted Anderson in compiling a record of forty-seven victories, four ties and seven losses during the six seasons.

CONTRACT AT IOWA

Iowa City, Ia., Dec. 18.—(AP)—Prof. Karl E. Leib, chairman of the University of Iowa athletic board, said tonight with regard to the announcement that Joe Sheeketski had been named Holy Cross football coach:

"He is under contract to us and I personally have too much faith in Sheeketski to think that he will break his agreement with us.

"I feel quite confident that he will not break his obligation here."

Prof. Leib said his earlier statement, that selection of a back field coach to assist Dr. Eddie Anderson, new Iowa coach, would be left entirely in Anderson's hands, was made "before I had time to go into it."

Sheeketski was to have come here as a back field coach under Anderson.

SHEEKETSKI 'SURPRISED'

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 18.—(AP)—Joseph L. Sheeketski said tonight that his elevation from back field to head football coach at Holy Cross "came as a big surprise to me but a very pleasing surprise."

Commenting on a report from Iowa City that he was under contract to the University of Iowa, Sheeketski said he had only "a verbal understanding" with Dr. Eddie Anderson, whom he succeeds at Holy Cross.

"Anderson didn't want to stand in the way of my advancement," Sheeketski added.

LOSS TO ANDERSON

Brookline, Mass., Dec. 18.—(AP)—Dr. Eddie Anderson, informed tonight that his successor as head football coach at Holy Cross would be Joe Sheeketski, his No. 1 assistant, remarked: "That's swell for Joe."

"I hate to lose him," Anderson said, "because I've been counting on him in my new job at Iowa next year."

Open up your bleary eyes;

You're too young for work and study,

Be a gay and reckless lad,

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Blackhawks, who whipped the New York Americans, 4 to 0, in the Chicago Stadium a week ago last night, didn't want any one in Gotham to think them prejudiced. So last night they kicked the upholstery off the proud New York Rangers, 5 to 0. It was brutal. The champs' harvest did not include a single lucky goal. Just an abundance of speed, beautiful passing, accurate shooting all dressed up with slyness that dumfounded the cocky disciples of Lester Patrick, who left the rink stripped of all the anecdotes about himself. It was that bad.

Of course, the second place Rangers were shocked at the drubbing. And other form followers, including the most rabid followers of the revived champions, were surprised at the lopsided score. Previously the Rangers had won here 1 to 0, and the Hawks had won in New York, 1 to 0. It was two shutouts in a row over the Rangers for Goalie Mike Karakas and three in a row against New York teams for Mike, Mike who scored only one shutout all last year! And if Mike ever deserved a shutout he rated the one last night.

It was a Team Victory.

A lot of Chicago gents dipped their thumbs in the scoring pie last night. The tabulating was as follows:

Phil Besler, assisted by Paul Thompson, and Mush March, assisted by Earl Seibert, scored in the first period.

Joffre Desilets, assisted by Johnny Gottselig and Blinco, scored in the second period. Gottselig's assist increased his league-leading scoring tabulation to 19 points.

Thompson, assisted by Alex Levinsky, and Bob Gracie, assisted by Bill Thoms and March, scored the two goals in the third period. Gracie's was his first since becoming a member of the Hawks.

The lads began to speed up when Lynn Patrick went in the box to serve the first penalty of the game, two minutes for slashing at Thoms, after the halfway mark in the first period. Lynn was lonesome for only about thirty seconds when Seibert joined him to serve a tripping penalty.

Besler Goes to Town.

After Patrick got out and Seibert was still locked up, the full mobile New York force moved into the Hawk defense zone. There was about a minute of furious racing back and forth down the length of the rink. Then Thompson, in a back checking exploit, grabbed the puck in the vicinity of the Hawk cage and passed over to Besler on the right boards. The rookie dashed past the New York blue line. Then he swerved and headed straight for Kerr. The New York goalie apparently expected Besler to pass to Thompson, who had come down the rink across from him. Before Kerr could realize his mistake the rookie had him whipped with a neat goal to the near corner. The time was 15:07 of the first period.

The Hawks had another goal before the first period ended. Seibert retrieved the puck in his own defense zone and bisected both blue lines before passing to March on his right. Mush picked up the pass with firm assurance and slanted it past Kerr at terrific speed. The time of March's goal was 18:16 and Seibert scored an assist.

The Hawks Score Again.

The Hawks refused to take the defensive in the second period and carried the fight all the way—aggressiveness which was rewarded by Chicago's third goal in 18:49. Desilets scored it with assists by Gottselig and Blinco.

Thompson's goal in 12:07 of the final period was a thriller. Levinsky pulled the puck out of the Ranger swarm in front of the Hawk cage and Thompson picked it up near the middle of his own blue line, skated down the ice, feinted Kerr dramatically, then beat him with a shot from the goalie's boot tips. The Hawks' fifth goal was scored by Gracie. Thoms and March helped.

GALENTO IS NO. 1 CHALLENGER IN N. B. A.'S RATINGS

Nova Ranked 2d Among Heavyweights.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 18.—(AP)—The National Boxing association in its quarterly ratings today placed Tony Galento next to Champion Joe Louis among the world's heavyweight fighters.

Lou Nova, who defeated Tommy Farr last week was rated second among the challengers and Max Bear, the former champion, third.

The committee said it declined to give Bob Pastor a rating because he was under suspension in N. B. A. territory for failure to "fulfill a New Jersey contract against Red Burman."

CHICAGO MAY GET N. C. A. A. BASKET TOURNEY FINALS

H. G. Olsen, coach of the Ohio State university basketball team and general chairman of the National Intercollegiate Athletic association tournament committee, said last night that the playoff for the national college championship may be held in Chicago next spring. Olsen stopped in Chicago on his way to the Pacific coast where the Buckeyes will play six games in the next two weeks.

Teams to compete in the N. C. A. A. tournament will be chosen from eight districts throughout the country, four of them playing in one elimination meet east of the Mississippi river and the other four meeting in a tournament in the west. Dates and sites of these meets have not been settled.

The winners of the two eliminations will meet for the national collegiate championship, and Olsen hopes to have it played in Chicago as the most central location. The N. C. A. Howell Meets Tinsley; Blows May Fall Fast

Tommy Howell, Danville welterweight, and Bob Tinsley of the south side will meet in a return bout of eight rounds tonight in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street. In their previous meeting in the same arena Dec. 5, Howell won a close decision. It was a rock 'em, sock 'em fight. The defeat broke Tinsley's chain of five victories.

In a secondary feature Dick Kist of Danville and Steve Padon, Chicago, 150 pounder, also will meet in a rematch. Kist won a disputed decision in their earlier meeting to remain undefeated.

Tony Cianciola, Milwaukee middleweight prospect, tackles hard punching Eddie Meleski of the Catholic Youth organization in the first six rounder. Billy Gillespie, Stone Lake, Wis., heavyweight, who has scored nine straight triumphs, and Kenny Bell, Quincy, Ill., sectional Golden Gloves flyweight winner, appear in two contests of four rounds each. Gillespie meets Clarence Brown and Bell faces Eddie Lander.

A double windup will comprise this evening's wrestling card in White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. Abe Rothberg is paired with Ignacio Martinez and Mike Kilonis with an opponent not yet selected. In other bouts Jack Hagen meets Jack Conley. Roy Rickenbacker tackles Tony Bomerito, and Pierre La Belles meets Rocky Dempsey. . . . Silent George Mack, south side heavyweight wrestler, and Stanley Pinta clash in the mat headliner in Cicero stadium, 19th street and 52d avenue, tonight.

Before leaving for Los Angeles last night, Henry Armstrong said his contract with Mike Jacobs has been amended so that the promoter has exclusive rights to his services only in New York. The double champion said that if a $30,000 offer to fight in South America fails to materialize he will be ready to meet Davey Day in Chicago early in 1939. He denied a rumor that his management agreement has a three way spit—30 per cent to Eddie Mead, 15 to Al Jolson, and 5 per cent to Tom Gallery.

"Mead is the only manager I have," he insisted.

C. Y. O., PEPSI-COLA HOCKY TEAMS WIN IN ARENA LEAGUE

The Pepsi-Cola and Catholic Youth Organization teams scored victories in the Arena Hocky league yesterday. Pepsi-Cola defeated the Planerts, 3 to 2, in overtime and the C. Y. O. whipped the Hornets, 4 to 2.

The C. Y. O.-Hornet engagement was billed as the feature game, but the Pepsi-Colas and Planerts put on the better battle. Trailing, 2 to 0, going into the final period, Pepsi-Cola drove in two goals to carry the contest into overtime and won out on Brass' goal with less than a minute left to play. A total of 47 minutes in penalties was meted out, 28 to Pepsi-Cola and 21 to Planerts, for a new league record.

C. Y. O. held a 2 to 0 lead over the Hornets in the third period, but goals by Hammond and Ford produced a 2 to 2 tie with six minutes remaining. Savela and Hutchinson then scored for the C. Y. O. to clinch victory.

BYRNE TRIUMPHS IN FINAL EVENT OF DINGHY SERIES

Fran Byrne sailed his Frostbite dinghy to victory yesterday in the final race of the Jackson Park Yacht club's first annual winter series. With Ted Fanin as crew, Byrne ended the series with ninety-seven points.

Douglas Palm, sailing Mrs. Fran Byrne's boat, was runner-up with ninety-one points. Mr. and Mrs. Bert Billhelmer were third with seventy-seven points. Six other craft of the club's fleet competed yesterday in the final round of racing in Jackson park harbor.

A race between D class Dyer dinghies was attempted yesterday in Belmont harbor, but ice floes from Lake Michigan floated in and made it impossible to continue running and tacking in racing form.

Akron Quintet Defeats Hammond in Overtime

The Akron Goodyear basketball team, champion of the National Pro Basketball league the past two years, required a five minute overtime period yesterday to defeat the Hammond five, 40 to 36, in Hammond.

Tigers Have a New Booster in Hutchinson

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 18.—(AP)—Freddy Hutchinson, the sensational Seattle pitcher who was sold to Detroit recently, predicted today the Tigers would have the best chance of any team in the American league to overtake the champion New York Yankees.

"At that, I betcha we won't do any worse than third, but if the pitching holds up we'll take those Yankees," he said. "Detroit hasn't much to worry about at the plate—it has plenty of power there.

He'll Be Glad to Try.

"There certainly won't be any lack of trying on my part. All we need to do is be on the lookout for the Yankees. But, of course there are other teams which appear to have power—they are Boston and Cleveland."

Hutchinson said he would be glad to "get in there and try to win along with Bridges, Rowe, and them all."

He weighs 200 pounds and is 6 feet 2 inches tall and has dark brown eyes, brownish-red hair, and freckles.

Hutch, as he is known in Seattle, is the son of a doctor. He started high school in 1934, became catcher on the school baseball team in his freshman year and the same season pitched an American Legion team to the national championship in Topeka, Kas.

Tigers Pay for Delay.

The Tigers could have had him at the time but they hesitated and the delay cost them many thousands of dollars. Justin Fitzgerald, Detroit scout, wanted to sign Hutch but Freddy's father told him not to sign unless he was given $5,000 cash.

Two years later, Detroit got Hutchinson, but at a reported cost of $50,000 and four other players. Hutch got his cut this time.

Last season Hutchinson won 25 Pacific Coast league games and lost seven. He won several of his games by hitting and has been used as a pinch hitter. His earned run average was around 2:50.

He has two brothers, one a baseball player in the Western International league and another, now a physician, who played pro baseball several years ago.

Tropical Park Opens Florida Season Today

Coral Gables, Fla., Dec. 18.—(AP)—New records in attendance and parimutuel betting appeared likely tonight for the Florida racing season which opens tomorrow at Tropical Park.

Last season 822,838 persons passed $34,252,022 through the betting windows—exclusive of the $20,000,000 bet on greyhounds and Jai Alai games—set a new high.

But qualified authorities say the tourist season is bigger this year and a new race track is scheduled to open when Hialeah Park does on Jan. 18.

The new track, Gulfstream Park near Hollywood, is being put in shape and expects its first horses tomorrow. The racing strip and most of the stables have been finished and officials hired.

Plan Match Race.

Meanwhile the Miami Jocky club plans a more brilliant season than ever at Hialeah with another match race between War Admiral and Seabiscuit a possibility. Neither horse is here now, but both have been nominated for the $50,000 Widener Challenge Cup which closes Hialeah's season March 4. Stagehand and Lawrin are other notable nominees, the Kentucky Derby winner being among 2,000 horses already on hand.

The return of two old favorites also will add interest to the season. Jocky Don Meade, after a two year suspension for improper betting, has been reinstated by the state racing commission and is expected to arrive tomorrow from Columbia, S. C. He has been galloping the George Odom horses at Columbia and probably will resume riding at Tropical Park.

Ten in Inaugural.

Jocky Eddie Litzenberger, out for three years with a fractured leg that was rebroken twice, has been in workouts at Tropical and also probably will don the silks again.

Tropical's inaugural feature will be a 6 furlong handicap for a $1,200 purse with ten entries. Wise Prince, owned by Felix Spatola of Philadelphia, drew top impost of 119 pounds.

Chicagoans Are Slow Rallying to Ducks Unlimited

BY BOB BECKER.

Duck hunters in Peoria, Decatur, and Springfield, Ill., are going to play Santa Claus. Responding to a call of Ducks Unlimited, the national organization restoring marshes and providing nesting grounds for waterfowl in Canada, leading groups of sportsmen in the three down state cities have appointed committees and are now busy raising funds to be spent in Canada during 1939.

C. S. Bedell of New York, and L. H. Barkhausen of Chicago, chairman of the Illinois organization, addressed meetings and told sportsmen what Ducks Unlimited was doing in Canada. Bedell's itinerary will take him to Bloomington, Chillicothe, and Joliet for additional conferences with sportsmen.

Officers of the Illinois organization report that sportsmen down state are much more interested in the program than those in Chicago, although there are thousands of waterfowl hunters in the city [including members of duck clubs and owners of duck shooting property] who constantly are complaining and urging that somebody "do something" to make shooting better.

Boston Goalie Adds Wings to Shutout List

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 18.—(AP)—Frank Brimsek, young goalie of the Boston Bruins, ran his string of shutouts to five in the last six games as the leaders of the National Hocky league race blanked the Detroit Red Wings, 2 to 0, tonight.

A crowd of 11,418 saw Boston score twice in the last ten minutes after Tiny Thompson, former Boston goalie recently purchased by Detroit, more than matched Brimsek for brilliance. Time after time Boston forwards sifted through the Detroit defense to rain shots on Thompson, but until Dit Clapper connected from ten feet out nine minutes and forty-four seconds before the end he remained unbeatable.

Boston's final goal came eighteen seconds before the end when Manager Jack Adams of the Red Wings withdrew Thompson from the ice, put six forwards on the ice, and left the goal unguarded. Milt Schmidt fired a perfect shot from near center ice into the open net. Lineup:

ATTACK $99,700 ITEM IN ELECTION BOARD'S BUDGET

Aldermen Assail System of Bill Paying.

When the board of election commissioners in any year spends more than the city allots for operating expenses it is up to County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki to figure out a way to make up the difference.

This opinion was expressed yesterday by members of the city council finance budget committee sitting in a budget session. The city is not responsible for a deficit, they asserted. Obligations incurred in one year should not be piled on the next year's expenses, the chairman added.

The committee seriously considered chopping $99,700 off the board's estimates of its 1939 needs. At one time in yesterday's session the committee voted the reduction, then reversed itself and deferred action pending a conference with the election commissioners.

1938 Fund Exhausted.

An appropriation of $1,119,205 for operating the board during 1938 is exhausted, the committee was told. Approximately $160,000 in bills remain to be paid. Next year's estimated expenditures do not include any mention of these obligations, which are mostly for printing and stationery.

But Mable G. Reinecke, Republican election commissioner, said last week that Controler Upham's recommendation of $1,423,595 for 1939 will permit payment of all except $60,000 of the unpaid bills.

From her statement the committee reasoned that an extra $100,000 for 1938 is included in the amounts set up for 1939.

Puts It Up to Judge.

"We aren't being supplied with true information on what is strictly necessary for next year," complained Ald. George Kells [28th].

"The bills aren't our responsibility," Ald. Roger J. Kiley [37th] asserted. "We can't economize if we are burdened with old obligations."

"It's the county judge's problem," Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th], committee chairman, said. "Maybe he has the power to exceed his income. City officials would be indicted for doing that."

The election board is under the direct supervision of Judge Jarecki, who was dropped from the ticket by the regular organization before the primary. Subsequently he won renomination as an independent.

Used for Extra Clerk Hire.

It was explained that the board's shortage resulted from registration confusion before the primary when extra clerks were hired to straighten out the poll lists. Money was transferred from printing to pay rolls.

Yesterday's meeting was called to find unnecessary expenses that could be eliminated. Mayor Kelly has requested economy in the city's 1939 fiscal program. Several small items were trimmed and others were set aside for future study. Work on the budget is being speeded so the distribution of city funds for relief will not be interrupted at the end of the year.

3 IOWANS SAIL 9,000 MILES IN 30 FOOT KETCH

San Pedro, Cal., Dec. 18.—(AP)—Gaunt and weary, the three man crew of the thirty-six foot auxiliary ketch Exchange moored their craft in Los Angeles harbor today, completing a 9,000 mile voyage from Davenport, Ia., via the Mississippi, inland waterways to Florida, then to the Panama canal via the West Indies.

For many days after leaving Balboa, Panama, Aug. 23, the men were near death from starvation and thirst because of a calm off the Mexican coast. "A couple of rain squalls saved our lives," said Carl F. Eubotter, 48 years old, owner of the boat, who made the voyage with his son, William, 20, and Charles G. Waggener, 24.

The Exchange left Davenport Oct. 25, 1937. Eubotter is a Davenport furniture manufacturer. He and his son built the boat in their back yard. Mrs. Eubotter has been in Santa Monica, Cal., for several months, anxiously awaiting the arrival of the boat.

FOR THE 1 MAN IN 7 WHO SHAVES EVERY DAY

HERE'S A SPECIAL SHAVE CREAM

It's Not a SOAP... Not Greasy
Needs No Brush... No
Irritating Alkalies... Leaves
Your Skin Soft and Smooth

Daily shaving leaves many men's faces raw and sensitive. This is especially true of the man who, because of his business and social status, must shave every day.

To meet this condition, Williams has now developed a special cream for daily shavers. It's called Glider. After washing face thoroughly with soap and warm water to remove razor-dulling grit, you spread on Glider quickly and easily with your fingers. No brush. No lather. Not sticky or greasy.

A superabundance of moisture is contained in this rich, smooth cream. It softens each whisker right down to the skin, yet forms a protective layer over your face to keep blade from scraping. Swiftly and gently your razor glides over your skin without tearing or irritating. Like a cold cream, Glider smooths and softens your skin. It actually relieves soreness and helps prevent chapping and roughness. Glider is the result of nearly 100 years' experience in making fine shaving preparations.

Try Glider at Our Expense: Send your name and address on a penny post card, for a generous FREE tube of Glider 'No-Brush' Cream. The J. B. Williams Co., Dept. CT-17, Glastonbury, Conn.

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

CHANGE IN FARM LAW PREDICTED AS QUOTAS LOSE

Crop Control 'Dead,' Borah Declares.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 18.—(AP)—Farmer rejection of federal marketing controls for next year's burley and dark type tobacco crops led many members of congress to predict today that the present farm law will be changed.

Senator Borah.

The tobacco marketing quotas were rejected in voting conducted among the growers Saturday. Defeat of the proposals gave the agriculture department a score of four losses and one victory in referendums on sales controls for 1939 crops. In similar elections conducted the preceding Saturday growers of flue cured tobacco and rice rejected quotas and cotton farmers approved them.

Control Idea Dead, Says Borah.

Congressional leaders generally agreed that the referendums would have a strong influence on the attitude the new congress takes toward the farm problem and existing legislation. Opinion varied as to what action the lawmakers would take.

Senator Borah [R., Idaho] declared the quota rejections had helped sound a death knell for the administration's crop control theory. This theory is that farm prices and income can best be maintained at fair levels by means of governmental control of production and marketing when price-depressing supplies accumulate.

"The idea of production control is dead," Borah said.

Views of Other Leaders.

This view was taken also by congressmen who favor so-called "domestic allotment" and "two price" farm policies. These would permit unlimited production, with the government guaranteeing prices of the domestically consumed portion of the crops and selling the surplus abroad at whatever prices it would bring.

Such administration supporters as Chairman Jones [D., Tex.] of the house agriculture committee and Representative Fulmer [D., S. C.], a member of that committee, contended, on the other hand, that production control was here to stay.

Both expressed the view, however, that defeat of the tobacco quotas would lead to legislation designed to eliminate farmers' objections.

U. S. Agency's 50 Millions of Notes Offered

Washington, D. C., Dec. 18.—(AP)—The Reconstruction Finance corporation invited subscriptions today, at par and accrued interest, for $50,000,000 of series B 1⅝ per cent notes of the Federal National Mortgage association.

The entire stock of the association, organized last February with paid-in capital of $10,000,000 and paid-in surplus of $1,000,000, is owned by the RFC. It has oustanding $29,748,000 of 2 per cent notes, series A. Chairman Jesse Jones of the RFC said undivided profits of the association amount to about $500,000.

Will Buy Mortgages.

The financing, Jones explained, would provide additional funds for use primarily in purchasing mortgages insured by the Federal Housing administration and in making loans secured by FHA insured mortgages.

The notes will be dated Jan. 3, 1939, and will mature on Jan. 3, 1944. They will not be callable during the first year, but will be callable after that at 102 per cent and each succeeding year at 101½ per cent, 101 per cent, and 100½ per cent, respectively, plus accrued interest.

Interest Is Tax Exempt.

Their principal and interest will be exempt from federal, state, municipal, and local taxation except surtaxes, estate, inheritance, and gift taxes.

Subscriptions will be received by the RFC and its loan agencies. Banking institutions may submit subscriptions for account of customers. Cash subscriptions by banks and trust companies [not exceeding one-half their capital and surplus] for their own account will be received without deposit. Cash subscriptions from all others must be accompanied by payment of 5 per cent of the amount of notes applied for.

Canada Dry.

Investors' Guide: How has the Canada Dry Ginger Ale company been doing since prohibition was repealed? I understand the company sells liquors now as well as the mixer. It seems to me that repeal should have helped the business. What is the latest data on operations?—M. H.

Answer: Canada Dry Ginger Ale, Inc., is doing a larger volume of business than it did in the lush days of 1929, but its profits are only about one-fifth of 1929 earnings.

After repeal, the company began an aggressive program to build up its distribution of products. To its soft drink line it added a line of Johnnie Walker whiskies and other hard liquors. As a result, about two-thirds of its sales are soft drinks and one-third alcoholic beverages. Other producers and distributors have met Canada Dry with such aggressive price competition, however, that profits have not climbed in proportion to sales.

In fact, although sales in the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1938, rose $96,000 to $14,923,000, net income slipped to $691,500, compared with $730,500 in the preceding year. On a per share basis, net income was $1.12 against $1.18.

The company's sale volume sank to an all time low of $6,238,105 in 1933 [year ended Sept. 30]. Sales began to climb in 1934 but profits continued downward through 1936, when net income was only $182,400. This represented an almost uninterrupted drop from the 1929 high of $3,534,000.

R. W. Moore, president, in the latest annual report said that the company is continuing to expand its manufacturing and selling facilities. It is building new plants near some of its larger markets and is furthering the plan of direct to retailer marketing. This program helped sales of carbonated beverages to increase in the latest year by 800,000 cases to about 9,500,000 cases. In 1935 the total was 3,500,000 cases.

The failure of profits to pick up along with sales, Moore said, was due somewhat to the expenses of instituting new methods. He pointed out that overhead expenses of new plants sometimes exceed the gross income. To better its competitive position this year, Canada Dry plans to complete plants at Long Island, N. Y., Rochester, N. Y., and Boston, Mass.

In 1936, with earnings still on the downgrade, dividends were omitted, and nothing was paid in 1937. Payments were resumed this year with 25 cents a share disbursed on Sept. 19.

Canada Dry's 615,000 shares of $5 par capital stock are held by about 6,000 stockholders.

STEEL INDUSTRY RESISTS LAG OF HOLIDAY SEASON

Resistance of the steel industry to the lulling influence of the holiday season is a promising sign of improvement in the first quarter of the new year, the magazine Steel asserted yesterday.

"Good demand from the building and automotive industries largely is offsetting restricted shipments to smaller consumers, who are attempting to reduce inventories," the journal stated. "A somewhat unexpected but encouraging revival in purchasing by railroads not only is a factor in bolstering current sales but also promises to develop into a more sustaining influence early next year."

The magazine's survey of last week's developments in the industry indicated that the rate of ingot output slipped 3 points to 58 per cent of capacity.

Scrap prices were generally weaker last week. Higher prices in eastern Pennsylvania resulting from a better demand for export material caused the scrap composite to advance 17 cents to $14.83 and the iron and steel composite 2 cents to $36.38.

Control Over World Wheat Crop Proposed

International control of the world's wheat production and marketing is proposed as one method of meeting the problem of surplus supplies. Whether concerted efforts should be made to curtail production will be discussed at an international wheat conference scheduled to meet in London on Jan. 10.

The advisibility of international action to bring about a closer balance of supplies and demand has been under consideration for a number of weeks. Representatives of the United States department of agriculture recently concluded a series of talks with Canadian grain men at Winnipeg.

Drouth May Be Influence.

It was brought out at the meeting that there appeared to be little possibility of exporting countries being able to dispose of all the wheat they have to sell under existing conditions.

Drouth over a large part of the American winter wheat belt looms as a major market influence. Reports from Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, and Nebraska indicate that the new crop is deteriorating steadily because of lack of moisture.

Recent price changes in world wheat markets have been inconsequental.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

A New Dahlia

December 18, 1938.

A NEW dahlia has been developed in the private garden at the Du Page county farm. It is distinctly different from other dahlias. The new creation scored 86.1 points in the American Dahlia society's midwest trial gardens at East Lansing, Mich., this summer. No other dahlia produced in the trial made a higher score.

The new flower is to be given official recognition by the society. Its blossoms, citron green in color, are of the semi-cactus type. Each petal is split into three parts and slightly twisted at the point, giving the delicate blossom a soft appearance.

The outstanding features of the farm's dahlia are: [1] The blossoms are borne on a bush instead of a tall straight plant with branches shooting off the main stalk. In the new one, branches come out from a solid woody base immediately above the ground. [2] Its laciniated petals, split into the three parts, is a characteristic unknown in the dahlia family that has more than 14,000 named varieties. [3] It resists insects. [4] It stands up under strong winds that readily break the hollow stalks of most tall growing dahlias.

Result of 9 Years' Work.

The new dahlia has been named "Mrs. R. R. McCormick." It was produced by John Wallner, the farm's head gardener. Nine years ago Wallner began his work of trying to develop a distinctly different dahlia variety. For the first five years he met with discouragement. Thousands of plants were discarded in his search for something different.

He began his work because many of the dahlias were originated in other parts of the country where the climate is much more favorable for raising dahlias than it is in the middle west. New dahlias are originated from seed. Most of them revert to the small, single flowered inferior sort that resembles the old dahlia that was originated in Mexico and was named for Andreas Dahl.

Wallner's first attempts with seeds were not successful. But he kept trying, using seeds of some of the well established varieties. Finally, by crossing flowers of the Jane Cowl, an established variety, with pollen from other varieties, the new dahlia was discovered. Four years ago the stranger showed up among hundreds of seedlings. Since then the gardeners have attempted to build up a stock of tubers.

The bushy plant is only 3 to 4½ feet tall. It is common for some varieties of dahlias to produce plants 6 to 8 feet high. By starting the tubers early, two crops of blossoms are produced by plants of the newcomer. Each plant produces an average of about twelve blossoms, six opening early and six late. The blossoms are 7 to 9 inches across and 2 to 4½ inches deep. They are so large and thick they almost hide the foliage when viewed from the top.

Color Seems to Change.

On cloudy days the blossoms appear to be almost pink. On bright sunny days they turn to a light yellow with a pink bush appearing down deep in the petals.

Public announcement of the dahlia was withheld until after the originator received a report of the successful showing made in the midwest trial gardens.

Several outstanding awards have been won by the new flower, including a gold medal, highest award in the seedling class, at the Lake Forest dahlia show last summer. A basket of twenty blossoms won the Central States Dahlia society's 1938 medal. At the society's show last year the dahlia won firsts in both the seedling and large vase classes. The first year it was shown, in 1936, it won first in the seedling class in the Central States' show and the silver trophy for the best basket of blossoms in the same show.

GERMANY'S FLOATING DEBT RISES; TAXES UP; MORE LEVIES SLATED

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Dec. 18.—[Special.]—Reports on Germany's financial situation showed today that the floating debt at the end of October had increased to 4,890,000,000 marks from 4,753,000,000 at the end of September [the mark is about 40 cents].

November taxation returns amounted to 1,263,800,000 marks, against 1,022,900,000 marks last year. Income tax receipts were 321,700,000 marks, against 247,800,000 marks. From April 1 to Nov. 30 the state revenue aggregated 10,935,000,000 marks, and officials predicted that the goal of 17,000,000,000 marks for the whole financial year will be attained.

New taxation to be decreed this week is expected to increase the revenues by 400,000,000 marks annually.

PIERSON IN CUBA TO SCAN CREDIT ON PUBLIC WORKS

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Dec. 18.—[Special.]—Warren Lee Pierson, president of the Export-Import Bank of Washington, D. C., arrived in Havana today. He came to investigate the possibilities of extending credits for construction of various public works projects in Cuba. He was met by Secretary of the Treasury Oscar Garcia Montes and other government officials.

Pierson denied his visit was a prelude to a loan for Cuba by the American government of 50 million dollars. Such a loan has been rumored here since the return of Col. Fulgencio Batista, Cuban chief of staf, from the United States.

"I would not use the term loan in referring to the operation contemplated by the bank," Pierson said, "but rather the word credit. Loan is an outright delivery of money, while credit involves supervised spending."

REBELS CLAIM LEGAL RULE OF BANK OF SPAIN

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

SANTANDER, Spain, Dec. 18.—The board of directors of the Bank of Spain met here today. It was announced that more than 1,000 shareholders, each representing fifty or more shares, were represented at the meeting and voted confidence in the institution's directors now residing in territory ruled by the rebels. A statement was issued saying the insurgent government "exercises the only legitimate control over the Bank of Spain, and all its funds illegally confiscated and used by Barcelona [the loyalists] have been stolen from the owners."

[The physical assets, including gold, of the Bank of Spain in Madrid were kept by the loyalists when the civil war began. The insurgents claim a majority of the stockholders.]

Everyday Economics

Export-Import Bank.

The Export-Import bank of Washington, D. C. was organized in 1934 as a governmental agency. All its outstanding stock is held by the federal government and by the government owned Reconstruction Finance corporation.

The purpose of the bank when it was formed was to aid in financing imports and exports of goods to and from the United States—that is, to encourage our foreign trade by making it financially possible. In June, 1936, this bank took over the Second Export-Import bank which had been organized especially to promote trade between Cuba and the United States.

Recently the activity of the bank in advancing credits to help foreign trade has increased. Last week it advanced $25,000,000 to finance exports from the United States to China. The money was loaned to a New York company, which will pay American exporters for goods they ship. The Bank of China has guaranteed that the shipments will be paid for by the Chinese within five years. Thus American exporters are really being paid by the Export-Import bank, which is depending on the Bank of China for eventual payment.

Actual loans of the Export-Import bank from the time of formation through July 31, 1938, totaled about $47,750,000, of which $29,231,000 had been repaid.

SWIFT PACKING FIRM REVEALS LOSS THIS YEAR

First Deficit Since 1932 Reported.

Swift & Co., the world's largest packing company, yesterday reported a consolidated net loss of $3,493,978 for the fiscal year ended Oct. 29. In the preceding fiscal year the company had a net profit of $8,880,496, equal to $1.48 a share. The 1938 loss was the first since the year ended Oct. 29, 1932, when the company lost $5,554,053.

John Holmes.

John Holmes, Chicago, president of Swift, said in his annual report to stockholders that the company dug into reserves to pay part of the year's dividends, which amounted to 4.8 per cent. Dividends totaled $7,103,259, compared with payments in the preceding year of $8,851,798.

The report showed that the company restored to earned surplus account $11,000,000 of reserves built up in 1933, 1934, and 1935 to take care of inventory losses.

Reserve Against Inventories.

After withdrawal of the $11,000,000 there still is $5,767,000 left as a reserve against possible inventory losses in the future. Inventory losses are those incurred when prices go down, cutting the value of meats and other supplies which the company has on hand.

Inventories were $86,233,160 at the year-end, compared with $109,295,894 a year earlier.

Sales of the company for the year were $793,816,615, a decline of 10 per cent from the dollar volume in the preceding year.

"This reduction in dollar sales," said Holmes, "was largely a reflection of the lower price levels at which our goods had to be sold. Our tonnage for the year, including other products as well as meats, was only slightly less than the near record level of 1937. The year's loss of $3,493,978 was considerably less than the decline in the value of inventories."

Has Loss on Inventory.

Elsewhere in the report, Holmes indicated the inventory losses for the year were more than $11,000,000.

"Our company," he said, "has long realized the nature of inventory profits and losses. We have known that profits due to rising inventory prices are not cash profits, because they must be immediately reinvested in high cost inventories to keep our business going.

"During the years 1933, 1934, and 1935, when prices were rising, your directors set aside a portion of the reported earnings of those years as a reserve for inventory price declines. This year we have drawn $11,000,000 from our inventory reserve account to offset a part of our inventory losses."

Taxes, other than income and profits taxes, were $7,774,962, compared with $6,847,803 in the preceding year. Contributions to the pension trust for the respective years were $3,070,591 and $3,107,281.

This was the first report submitted by Holmes. He was elected president of Swift on Nov. 18, 1937. He is the company's fourth president and the first who was not a member of the Swift family.
